Mayor: the city will grow during this decade

By FLORENCE MEEKS
ANP Staff Writer

Romulus will develop two distinct personalities during the next decade, predicts Mayor Beverly McAnally. High-technological developments will surround quaint, rural neighborhoods.

In both areas, McAnally envisions a bright future for the city.

"I think we're going to see a quality of development we haven't seen in western Wayne County," she said.

McAnally refers to the Metro World Centre, an extensive development planned for the north section of town near the Detroit Metropolitan Airport.

The center will include offices, conference centers, shopping facilities, apartments and college classrooms.

Two weeks ago, federal approval was granted for a Vining Road interchange to Interstate 94, providing a long awaited source of access to the development.

"It's going to be extraordinary," the mayor said.

McAnally envisions a strong development trend in the south part of the city as well, creating a wide range of job opportunities - hospitality, food and beverage management and mechanics. The mayor said she foresees openings on professional and administrative levels.

"The quality of education in the community will be crucial. We will be attracting people who will place greater demands on the district," McAnally said.

As development creates jobs and an attraction for new residents, Romulus will see a new demand for housing, the mayor continued. She acknowledged the city has limited space in that area.

"I think we will find creative ways to utilize the land," McAnally said.

Existing housing tends to cater to young families, she said.

"People will be increasingly mobile. They'll be here four or five years for a job and leave. There will be an increase in permanent, upscale housing, but mid-range apartments will see the most dramatic growth," she predicts.

Beverly McAnally

Also in the next decade, the airport will remain a concern. McAnally said proposed expansion plans for the airport should be eyed with caution.

Airport officials have announced plans to purchase homes and businesses to make way for proposed runway expansions and road developments.

"We want to make sure they can relocate within the community, and that they are compensated," McAnally said.

Touching on recreation opportunities for the '90s, the mayor said plans are under way for a city golf course that would be located near Elmer Johnson Park. City officials are also developing a recreation survey to poll residents' views.

"I don't know what people actually want for recreation," the mayor said.

In the next 10 years Romulus will also have a new police facility, the mayor said. Location will probably be based on residential developments, she added.

And for the downtown area, McAnally foresees growth in retail opportunities.

"You're going to be able to buy shoes and socks in Romulus," she said.

Instead of a large shopping center like Meijer, McAnally predicted a series of small specialty shops downtown. That area of Romulus will be reminiscent of "a quaint little village," she said.

"The downtown area will proceed in the next 10 years around Goddard to Five Points," McAnally added.

Search for prison escapees ends

By DANIEL CALABRESE
ANP Staff Writer

Federal marshalls in Wythville, Va., Friday arrested two men who escaped Dec. 24 from the Western Wayne Correctional Facility in Plymouth and reportedly kidnapped a local woman.

Frank Schanault, 33, of Westland, and Charles White, 28, of Pontiac, were arrested after kidnapping a Dearborn Heights woman and forcing her to drive them to Virginia, where they sought the help of relatives to elude capture, according to Sgt. Dean Sanderson of the Michigan State Police post in Northville.

The Plymouth facility is a medium-security prison.

The two escapees reportedly kidnapped the 20-year-old woman from a State Farm Insurance office on Telegraph Road in Dearborn Heights Thursday, Sanderson said, and forced her to take them to Bristol, Va., where they released

"The only apparent motive for the kidnapping was the need of the pair to gain transportation to Virginia.

the woman unharmed, according to police.

According to Sanderson, the only apparent motive for the kidnapping was the need of the pair to gain transportation to Virginia. He said they probably realized that Michigan authorities were on their trail.

When they arrived in Bristol, he said, they received the assistance of relatives, boarded a bus, and headed for Wythville. When they arrived there, a federal posse was waiting for them, Sanderson said.

The two suspects had told other prisoners before escaping that they would not be taken alive, Sanderson said. When they were confronted by the posse, he said, White attempted to run, while Schanault attempted to take an officer's gun.

Sanderson said Tuesday that he does not know when the two will be returned to Michigan.

Schanault had served 10 years of a 25-to-50-year sentence for multiple armed robberies. White had served three years of a two-to-50-year sentence for armed robbery and first-degree criminal sexual assault.

The status of the pair is unclear after their capture, Sanderson said. Michigan police officials expect to be talking with federal officials about additional charges.

Before the kidnapping and confrontation with federal officials in Virginia, Sanderson said the pair had already made themselves ineligible to return to the Plymouth facility by escaping.

Both men were considered dangerous and armed after their escape, which they attained by climbing a wall outside the Plymouth facility and riding off in a waiting car.

Police officials have offered no word on the fate of any accomplice who may have participated in the escape.

Police had been especially concerned about Schanault because he had a history of violence against police officers.

"He has engaged in physical struggles in the past with police officers, and he has used weapons in those struggles," Sanderson said.

Westland police inspector Michael Frayer said Schanault has been in and out of trouble.

"His childhood goal was to be a famous gangster," Frayer said.

Postmaster enjoys small town office

By FLORENCE MEEKS
ANP Staff Writer

Donna Hoevermeyer says she is exactly where she wants to be.

The Romulus postmaster said she likes the opportunity a small community offers to become familiar with her customers.

"I enjoy serving the people and doing the work we do," she said. "I don't think I'd really want to work in a large office. Here, you're more in tune to what their (customers) wants and needs are."

While describing her job, Hoevermeyer sits comfortably at a desk piled with paperwork. She points out a miniature red and blue post box her daughter knitted as a Christmas present.

Hoevermeyer said her role as postmaster mainly involves work inside the small, downtown post office. She is responsible for computer work, supervising a staff of three clerks and helping with incoming mail in the morning.

"And reports, reports that come out of your ears," she said.

Although Hoevermeyer has a managerial position, she said she is never locked away from the people who use the post office.

"I spend a good deal of my day on the phone with customers."

In recent weeks, however, Hoevermeyer and her staff have spent most of their time on the job coping with the traditional holiday rush.

"This year it seemed even more hectic than past years. It

Environment to take top rung, Mack says

By DANIEL CALABRESE
ANP Staff Writer

After a decade of what he called "revolutionary" change in government, Wayne County Commissioner Milt Mack (D-Wayne) said last week the 1990s will be the decade of the environment.

Wayne County went to a home rule charter in the 1980s, a change Mack said has resulted in important reform.

"The public pushed reorganization and elected people who were dedicated to reform," Mack said.

The change in county government contributed to the transformation of the county from one that was fiscally bankrupt to one that has become solvent, according to Mack.

The first two county executives - William Lucas and Edward McNamara - both deserve credit for making the new form of government work, Mack said.

Milt Mack

"They both served the goal of county reorganization in different ways, but both fulfilled that role," Mack said.

But as the '90s approach, Mack said he is concerned about the decreasing role of the federal government in issues, including the environment.

"With the federal withdrawal of funds, the local governments are really the only ones left to take responsibility," Mack said. "It has retarded the nation's efforts at taking care of our environment to the extent that the federal government no longer made our nation's environment a priority."

Mack said environmental problems cannot be solved in the '90s unless the federal government takes a role.

"Although the environmental problems are local, the federal government must play a role, both in terms of providing leadership and providing funds," Mack said. "The lakes and rivers of our nation flow through all our states, and they affect all of us."

Mack said Wayne County residents can take inspiration from events throughout the world, including the rise of democracy in eastern Europe.

"I think it will be a decade of opportunity," Mack said. "And frankly, I can't think of a decade that started out with more optimism."

Local army is met with trouble

Area Salvation Army representatives expressed concern last week about the potential damage recent mailing problems may have had on holiday fund-raising efforts.

"Just as we were preparing our Christmas letters to our donors a few weeks ago, our direct mail system stumbled," said Lt. Colonel Clarence Harvey, army commander for eastern Michigan.

"We had hoped that we solved our problem, but we later discovered that we mailed fewer letters than we have donors. In addition, we learned that some letters intended for Detroit area donors were mis-sent to other areas," Harvey said.

The Salvation Army Christmas campaign goal for 1989 is $2.6 million. Collections are far below that level, Harvey said.

"These problems originated in our own system, and we regret any inconvenience caused to our donors," the commander said. "But we don't want to leave anyone out of our Christmas campaign because we failed to contact them."

"We know that many of our most faithful contributors were missed (in the earlier mailing), and lost an opportunity to share in the Christmas joy," Harvey said.

Harvey said: "Hurricane Hugo and the California earthquake triggered an unsolicited outpouring of over $500,000 from Salvation Army supporters in Michigan. While all of these gifts went to disaster sites and none remained here, it's very possible that some of the support we traditionally get at Christmas was sent for the disasters instead."

Despite the lag in Christmas giving this year, Harvey said the army went ahead with the meals and gifts offered to approximately 190,000 needy people in the area at Christmas.

So far, Christmas income has not caught up with projections. As of Dec. 26, gifts totalled $2.1 million, 82 percent of the collection goal.

For more information about the annual Christmas campaign, contact Harvey at 443-5500.

Parking deck OK'd for airport

Approval has been obtained from airline officials to build a six-level parking structure at Detroit Metropolitan Wayne County Airport.

Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara recently announced authorization of the $30 million project.

"Engineering evaluation proved that rehabilitating the existing parking deck was impractical," McNamara said.

The new structure will accommodate approximately 3,200 vehicles and is expected to be completed in 18 months.

It will be built adjacent to the existing deck on the site of the current main lot. Most of the old parking deck will be demolished when the new garage is opened.

Major portions of the 22-year-old facility have been closed since July.

Commission appointments are approved

Several commission appointments were approved by Romulus City Council last week.

Appointed to the city pension committee were Nancy Schuette, 34th District Court administrator, and Christine Anderson.

Mary Tyus was appointed to the city housing commission.

Appointed to the Downtown Development Authority board was Dorothea Shaffer.

Break-in is reported

Romulus police officials said an upstairs doorwall had been pried open.

Among the items taken was a personal computer, a typewriter and a television, police said.

Wheels stolen from parked car

Four tires valued at $1,000 were stolen Dec. 27 from a car parked on the 8200 block of Merriman Road.

The 1978 Chevrolet had been parked overnight, police said.

was the same financially, but for some reason it felt like we had more to do."

Other tiresome times for postal employees are Valentine's Day, Mother's Day and income tax season, Hoevemeyer said.

And while her job can be demanding, Hoevemeyer said she cannot single out a particular responsibility she finds more challenging than the others.

"As postmaster it's a little of everything. I don't think any one part is any more difficult or important than the other. Customer service is a priority, but it's not challenging."

Hoevemeyer was appointed Romulus postmaster in the fall of 1987. Previously, she occupied the same post in Whittaker, a small town in Washtenaw County.

"I really enjoy the office here," Hoevemeyer said. "I have three good clerks...they require minimal supervision."

Now that she is settled in the post office, Hoevemeyer said she wants to become a member of the community. After building their home in Dundee, she and her husband do not intend to move, but Hoevemeyer said she plans to offer as much as she can to Romulus.

Currently, she is a member of the Greater Romulus Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors. Hoevemeyer is also considering switching her membership in the American Legion to a local branch.

"I spend more time up here," she said.

When she is at home, officially off duty, Hoevemeyer said she relaxes by sewing, cooking or reading.

"None of which I've had time to do during the past few weeks," she said laughing.

Hoevemeyer has four children ranging in age from 25 to 33, and she has two grandchildren.

City officials, workers earn pay increases

By FLORENCE MEEKS
ANP Staff Writer

The new year will begin with pay increases for elected city officials and non-union city employees.

As of Dec. 29, the mayor's salary went from $40,000 to $47,500 per year.

The salary of the city clerk and treasurer increased from $34,020 to $39,123.

City councilmembers' salary was increased from $5,000 to $5,750, and the mayor pro tem will earn $6,325, up from $5,500.

The increases were proposed by the Local Officers Compensation Commission, an appointed group of residents that meets every two years, and submits proposals to the city council.

Once the commission files a report with the city clerk's office, the recommendation becomes effective within 30 days unless rejected by a two-thirds vote of city council, city ordinance states.

The recent report was filed Nov. 29, and was not rejected.

All members of the compensation committee are appointed by the mayor and confirmed by city council. The committee also has the power to recommend pay decreases or no increases.

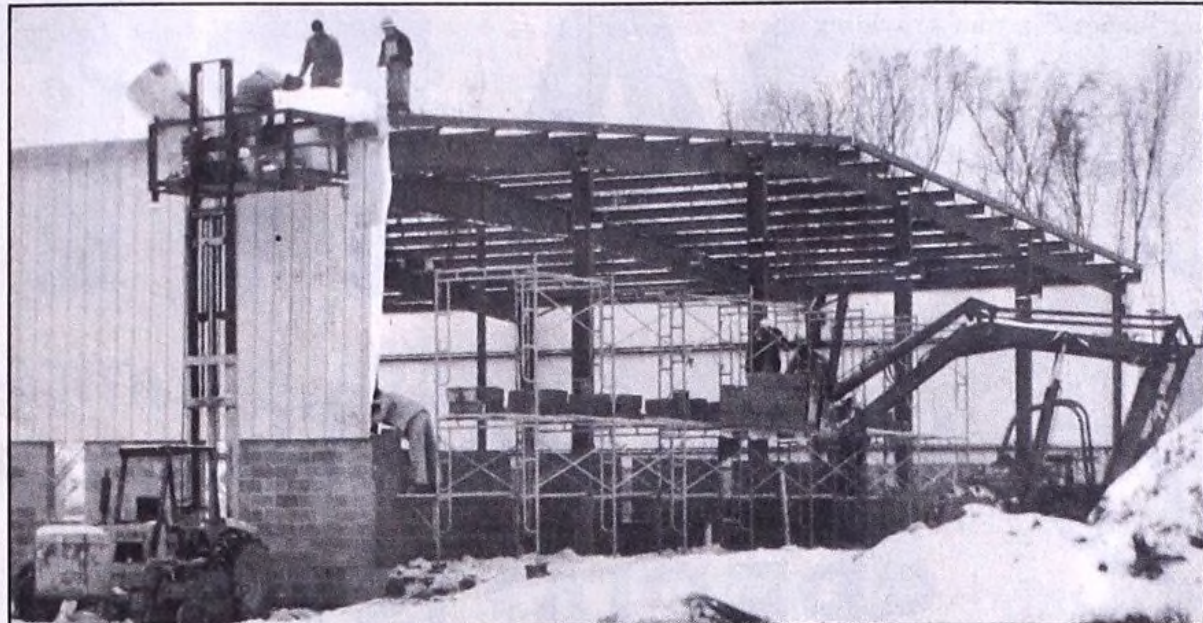

Committee members are Carol Bales, Ethel Lovette, Rosemary Nettle, Clarence Mahon, Donald Morgan, Charles Shonta and Bruce Jones, chairman.

In addition, city council Dec. 27 approved a two-percent pay increase for non-union city employees. When she presented a budget amendment for the increases to council, Mayor Beverly McNally said these employees have not had a wage adjustment since July 1, 1988.

"It had been our hope that we could award at least the equivalent of the increase in the cost of living to keep more current with the salary and wage study. However, the cost of living allowance stands at 4.5 percent and the city is not in a financial position at this time to make that adjustment," she said.

Among the non-union employees affected by increase are workers from the offices of the mayor, assessor, legal department, clerk, finance, personnel, purchasing, treasurer, community development, police, fire, building, emergency management, public works, ordinance, animal shelter, recreation and economic development.

Industrial park sees strong growth pattern

By FLORENCE MEEKS
ANP Staff Writer

When it is filled, Oakwood Industrial Park will span 65 acres, and include 35 building sites.

With at least two or three sites developed each year since the park was opened nearly four years ago, the project is experiencing steady growth.

A key to the success of the park is location, said Joe Kochanoski, a co-founder and investor in the Oakwood project. The park is off Eureka Road near the entrance ramp to Interstate 275.

Kochanoski said the idea for the park was born as he began investigating a move for his Taylor-based company, International Paint Stripping.

He liked a stretch of property near I-275, but it had several owners.

Kochanoski said his accountant knew a major owner as a client. He arranged a meeting and the 275 Investment Company was formed.

"It was a one in a million chance," Kochanoski said.

Today, eight of the 12 lots along Oakwood Road in the park are developed or sold. Eight additional lots, including several along I-275, have also been sold, Kochanoski said.

Along with International Paint Stripping, developments in the park include Aztec Manufacturing Co., Normandex Co., Woodbridge Co. and Morris Roofing Co.

Woodbridge, which manufactures foam for car seats, is the largest firm in the park with more than 100 employees, Kochanoski said.

If growth in the park remains steady, the 275 investment group will construct a rental building along the expressway. Kochanoski said investors also hope to see a restaurant constructed within the park.

Recently, the investment group has been working on expansion plans for the park. It would push the boundaries south to Pennsylvania Road and open a total of 140 acres when developed.

"All of this depends on the business climate," Kochanoski said. "This is entirely private funding."

"We'd like to see at least two to four buildings go in every year until we fill up," Kochanoski added.

Investors are optimistic about proposed plans to expand Detroit Metropolitan Airport. Plans call for Eureka Road becoming a second entrance to the airport.

"That would help us open more lots," Kochanoski said.

Local man injured in Inkster shooting

A 32-year-old Romulus man was shot last week after he reportedly fought with drug dealers.

Dennis J. Prylo suffered gunshot wounds to the head and shoulder after the incident. Prylo was listed in critical condition Tuesday at the University of Michigan Hospital.

Police said that they are looking for five to six youths who they believe shot Prylo after he and a second man argued with the gang over a drug sale.

Inkster Police Lt. Lee Crump said they have no suspects.

"What we know so far from questioning witnesses is that the victim and a friend attempted to buy drugs, flashed some money around and he (Prylo) was shot," Crump said.

According to police, officers were in the area of the 4000 block of Spruce "when they heard what sounded like five to six rapid-fire gunshots coming from Spruce and Annapolis."

Officers spotted a vehicle traveling westbound on Pine and placed the spotlights on the driver who was bleeding from the head, police said.

The driver, later identified as Prylo, stopped the vehicle and told the officers he "had just been shot."

While one officer stayed with the victim, the other drove to the area of the shooting in search for suspects.

After being transferred to Westland Medical Center, Prylo told police he and a second man went to the area looking for drugs.

He said when he stopped the vehicle and asked five to six youths if they had crack cocaine, they wanted to see his money before completing the sale.

The victim said he told the youths he had $100, then produced the cash.

According to the police report, one of the youths grabbed the money out of the victim's hands and ran. He said someone fired several shots and struck him.

Police said the victim apparently suffered a grazing bullet wound. The investigation is continuing.

Teen recovers after falling into machine

A 15-year-old Romulus boy was rescued by two police officers and an employee of the Osborne Concrete Company early Dec. 23 after falling into a grinder/hopper.

John Osborne, Jr. is being treated at Mott Children's Hospital in Ann Arbor. One of his legs was amputated below the knee shortly after he was admitted.

Osborne told police officials he had been pushing frozen sand into the hopper with his foot when he slipped and fell into the machine. The boy became trapped in the blades.

Police officers Tom Ellis and Mike St. Andre were called to the scene at approximately 7:30 a.m.

Present when they arrived was Ken Brown, a company employee. Fire and emergency medical personnel were also on the scene.

Eventually, Brown and St. Andre were able to pull the teen from the machine blades. Ellis used a rope from the fire department to make a sling and pull Osborne from the hopper.

Police officials later said cold temperatures made the rescue effort more complicated.

However, the cold also slowed bleeding from a severe cut on the teen's leg.

Osborne was transported to Annapolis Hospital in Wayne and then to the University of Michigan Medical Center.

He is expected to remain at Mott for six weeks.

Osborne is the son of the owner of the company.

Police investigate 2 recent robbery cases

Romulus police officials are asking local residents to keep an eye open for suspects from several recent robberies.

First, police officials are investigating an armed robbery reported Dec. 25 from a party store on the 37000 block of Huron River Drive.

A man armed with a revolver reportedly demanded an undisclosed amount of cash from the attendant. After receiving the money, the man fled on foot, police said.

The suspect is described as a white male in his early 30s. He is approximately 5 foot 6 inches tall, 180 pounds, with pale skin and dark, short hair.

Police said the man wore a dark blue jacket and a baseball cap at the time of the robbery.

Also under investigation are two cases of a "sneak thief."

The robberies, reported Dec. 15 and Dec. 25, were reported from gas stations. In each case, the suspect purchased a small item. When the clerks opened the cash register to make change, the suspect reached and grabbed a handful of money, police officials said.

During the Dec. 15 robbery the clerk slammed the cash register drawer on the suspect's fingers, ripping off one of the man's fingernails.

Police officials report the suspect from both robbery cases is described as a black male, 6 feet 4 inches tall, medium build and medium complexion. The suspect is believed to be in his mid-30s.

Anyone with information about either of the robbery suspects is urged to call the Romulus Police Department at 941-8400.

Downtown financing is approved

A new financing plan for proposed downtown developments was approved by city council Dec. 27.

During a public hearing that night councilmembers discussed a preliminary development plan for downtown that includes road improvements, new parking lots, landscaping, parks, and an improved separation of business and residential areas. All these measures are designed to increase development.

Members of the Downtown Development Authority proposed that the projects be funded through a tax increment finance authority. With this method, officials would "capture" tax revenue from new developments in the area and use it to pay for the improvements.

At the public hearing, DDA members successfully suggested using revenue from a proposed senior citizen housing complex at Wayne and Goddard roads. The development site is considered part of the downtown area.

SCHOOL NEWSSCHOOL NEWS
DIGEST*Essay contest is underway

The Michigan Senior Power Day Inc. board of directors is on the lookout for bright, articulate high school students, according to spokesperson Shelton Tappes.

"We've just initiated our first every high school essay contest, and we're hoping that the number of individuals who submit entries will be significant," Tappes said.

Students are being asked to write in 500 words or less what they consider to be the most important need of future generations and how that need might be met.

The deadline for entries is Feb. 16.

"We believe this contest will be a good experience for the students, a chance to get them thinking about an issue which should be important to them and to provide the much needed viewpoint of young people to the intergenerational happenings of Senior Power Day."

Tappes added, "The essay contest was born of the feeling that the changes in programs and services which senior citizens advocate today should also take into account the interests and probable needs of future generations."

The entries will be judged by a panel including retired senior managing editor of The Detroit Free Press, Neal Shine, who is honorary chairperson of the 1990 Senior Power Day.

First-, second- and third-place winners will come away with savings bonds of $100, $50 and $25, respectively.

Dining out

Students at Merriman Elementary School in Romulus learned earlier this year about the importance of good table manners. Students learned the proper utensils to use and the boys were taught how to pull a chair out for a lady. Troopers hang up on solicitors

Michigan State Police troopers want people to hang it up on telephone solicitors.

Under a new program, they are warning people about unscrupulous telephone solicitors. "Project Hang Up," a program designed by the Michigan State Police Troopers Association to encourage citizens to hang up on solicitors seeking donations by representing themselves as police organizations, is being implemented statewide, Richard Darling, association president, announced.

State Rep. Curtis Hertel, (D-Detroit), is sponsoring a bill aimed at outlawing unscrupulous groups claiming to represent law enforcement organizations.

But until the bill becomes law, police officials want the public to know they are not in the business of hawking money by phone.

"Neither the Troopers Association nor the Department of State Police utilize telephone solicitation," Darling said. "We encourage citizens to immediately hang up if someone calls claiming to represent the Michigan Department of State Police or MSPTA."

Some phone solicitors rely on intimidation, imply special treatment or threaten to withhold police services to entice people to contribute, police officials said.

"These tactics defile the image of the state police who the solicitor fraudulently claims to represent," said State Police Director Col. R.T. Davis.

Under Hertel's bill, a group or professional fundraiser claiming to represent public safety interests must first register with the state attorney general.

The group must state its specific purpose and what the money is for, including if any money will be spent as campaign donations to public officials.

The bill also prohibits the use of a name similar to another organization name that would mislead the public.

The bill also guards against soliciting funds on behalf of a slain officer's family without written approval by the family.

"We are confident that every police organization in this state will support Rep. Hertel's legislation because it is a benefit to the citizens we all serve," Darling said. "Without this legislation, fraudulent and deceptive practices will continue to pick the pockets of Michigan citizens."

"Project Hang Up" offers these tips in identifying phone solicitation scams:

If the solicitor is uncooperative, rude or uses high-pressure tactics, hang up.

If the solicitor tries to rush you into a decision, hang up.

Request the solicitor to clearly explain who he represents and what the money is needed for. If he hesitates, hang up.

If the solicitor attempts to intimidate you or promises special treatment by the police, hang up.

If you feel at anytime the solicitor is unscrupulous or may be part of a fraudulent operation, hang up.

Local man recalls hateful Panama

Anti-American sentiment in Panama comes as no surprise to longtime Belleville resident Park Gregory, who recalls a long history of anti-U.S. feelings in the country.

Commenting on the current American intervention in the Central American country, Gregory said, "Even though the actions of the U.S. may restore democracy to the people of Panama, I feel it will not change the anti-American sentiment there."

At 1 a.m. Dec. 20, four U.S. task forces struck three areas of Panama in an effort to capture Gen. Manuel Noriega and to place Guillermo Endara, the declared president, in office. First reports had predicted a "quick in and out," but later reports indicated that it may take up to a year to restore order to the country.

Gregory said that he believes the treaty that took effect in 1979 and which will return sovereignty over the Canal Zone to Panama in 2000, "seems more like an act of appeasement than one of logic." The ability of the Panamanians to handle major repairs or improvements seems almost nil, he added, and with the unstable government there, the situation may be almost dangerous.

The Belleville man recalled a personal experience with anti-American sentiment in Panama.

"Some 25 years ago, I was making preparations for a trip to Panama and the Canal Zone for the purpose of filming on the island of Barro Colorado, in Lake Gatun," Gregory said. "I had received permission to make a one-day visit to the island, but had been told that living facilities there were reserved a year or more in advance so I could not plan an overnight there."

Gregory was given instructions on how he could stay in Panama City and catch a 6:30 a.m. train to the Frijoles Station and board a ferry to Barro Colorado - a process which would have to be reversed later the same day.

"All of this came with the warning that it would be best to be seen as little as possible in Panama," Gregory said. "My preparations had reached the point of a letter - sealed and ready for mailing - requesting reservations in Panama City."

That evening, before the letter was mailed, the news told of anti-American riots in Panama, and Gregory made no further plans.

Health fairs are slated for area

By JOHN AGGE
ANP Staff Writer

The 1990 Project Health-O-Rama schedule has been set to run from March 19 to April 12, in the metropolitan area, project planners said.

Project Health-O-Rama offers a battery of free health tests to the public, including testing for high blood pressure, hearing problems, different types of cancer and hearing loss.

Volunteers from the medical community and local groups, such as firefighters, police, civic clubs and sororities and fraternities will assist.

Last year, Health-O-Rama served more than 55,000 people at 97 sites in Wayne, Macomb, Oakland, Monroe, St. Clair, Livingston, Washtenaw and Lapeer counties.

Project officials said they expect the same number will be helped this year.

Locally, Health-O-Rama will set up shop March 19 to 22 at Westland Center.

Wayne County Community College will host the project March 23.

The Westland Medical Center will host it April 4.

The 11th annual workshop series features updates on fishery management issues. Experts from business, state and federal agencies and Michigan State University and the University of Michigan will present the program.

Bills aimed at infant mortality

State lawmakers have approved two bills to tackle the problem of infant mortality in Michigan.

The bills would require the state Department of Public Health to develop and mail a brochure about parenting to all first-time parents.

The bills also require the department to establish a Child Mortality Review Panel. The panel would review all infant deaths and recommend action to the Governor and the Legislature.

Fully-automatic guns targeted

Legislation, presently in the Michigan House of Representatives, would ban fully-automatic weapons in the state.

The bill is aimed at controlling weapons used in the illegal drug trade.

The measure would require a criminal history check and a mental health background declaration for gun purchasers. It also would ban the sale and possession of kits used to change semiautomatic guns to fully-automatic firing.

Committee reports on medical waste

Legislation that would impose fines and penalties for the improper disposal of medical waste has been approved by a Michigan House of Representatives committee.

The bill now goes before the full House.

This legislation, prompted by incidents of used syringes and intravenous bags washing up on four Lake Michigan beaches, would require health facilities to properly separate, package and decontaminate their waste.

Insurance changes made

The Michigan legislature recently approved a bill which would require insurers to give people who are no longer eligible for group coverage the option of continuing their coverage on an individual policy.

The legislation is aimed at protecting those who lose their group coverage due to company budget cuts, divorce, loss of employment, death or illness.

1990 Blue Ribbon grants available

All communities, public agencies and private non-profit groups are urged to apply for the 1990 Blue Ribbon Opportunities Project grants.

The grants, from the Michigan Youth Corp, are used to encourage innovative Youth Corp projects that use local resources and provide meaningful benefits to the community.

Interested people should contact the Michigan Youth Corp at (517)699-1320 for more information. Deadline to apply is Feb. 15.

House passes approval bill

The Michigan House of Representatives has approved a bill creating the Michigan Premium Program.

The program would recognize the highest quality agriculture products from Michigan.

Local woman looks ahead to new decade

By JOAN MARY DYER
Belleville City Editor

As Janet Millard looks forward to the 1990s, she feels a twinge of dejavu.

Ten years ago, she recalls, the economic downturn caught her unaware. Although she remembers following the events of the day carefully at that time, the recession of the early 1980s shocked her and her family, as well as many of her neighbors and acquaintances. As 1990 approaches, Millard sees a sprinkling of layoffs and cutbacks — the same signs that heralded the difficult days of the early 1980s.

"I hope that the decade to come will be a prosperous one for everyone, but I'm looking at

"I hope that the decade to come will be a prosperous one for everyone, but I'm looking at it with mixed feelings".

— Janet Millard
Executive Secretary

it with mixed feelings," Millard said. "In our area I see a lot of positive signs for the coming years — our downtown revitalization, street improvements, the new post office, new Meijer store and several new businesses on Main Street."

A resident of the West Willow area, Millard does not remember the Belleville area of 10 years ago very well. However, she is constantly told by longtime residents that Belleville Road — now occupied by shopping centers, restaurants and a variety of businesses — had few buildings between Tyler Road and the I-94 freeway.

Millard, who is the executive secretary of the Belleville Area Chamber of Commerce, noted that most signs in the area point to a continuation of the building boom that has brought commercial growth to Belleville and promises more industrial and residential development in the near future.

From a personal view, Millard, who is in her mid-40s, sees the end of the last decade very positively.

"In 1979, my son, William, was born, and my daughter, Dina, was six," Millard said. "I remember it as a very pleasant part of my life. I enjoyed being home with my children, and I also enjoyed doing volunteer work."

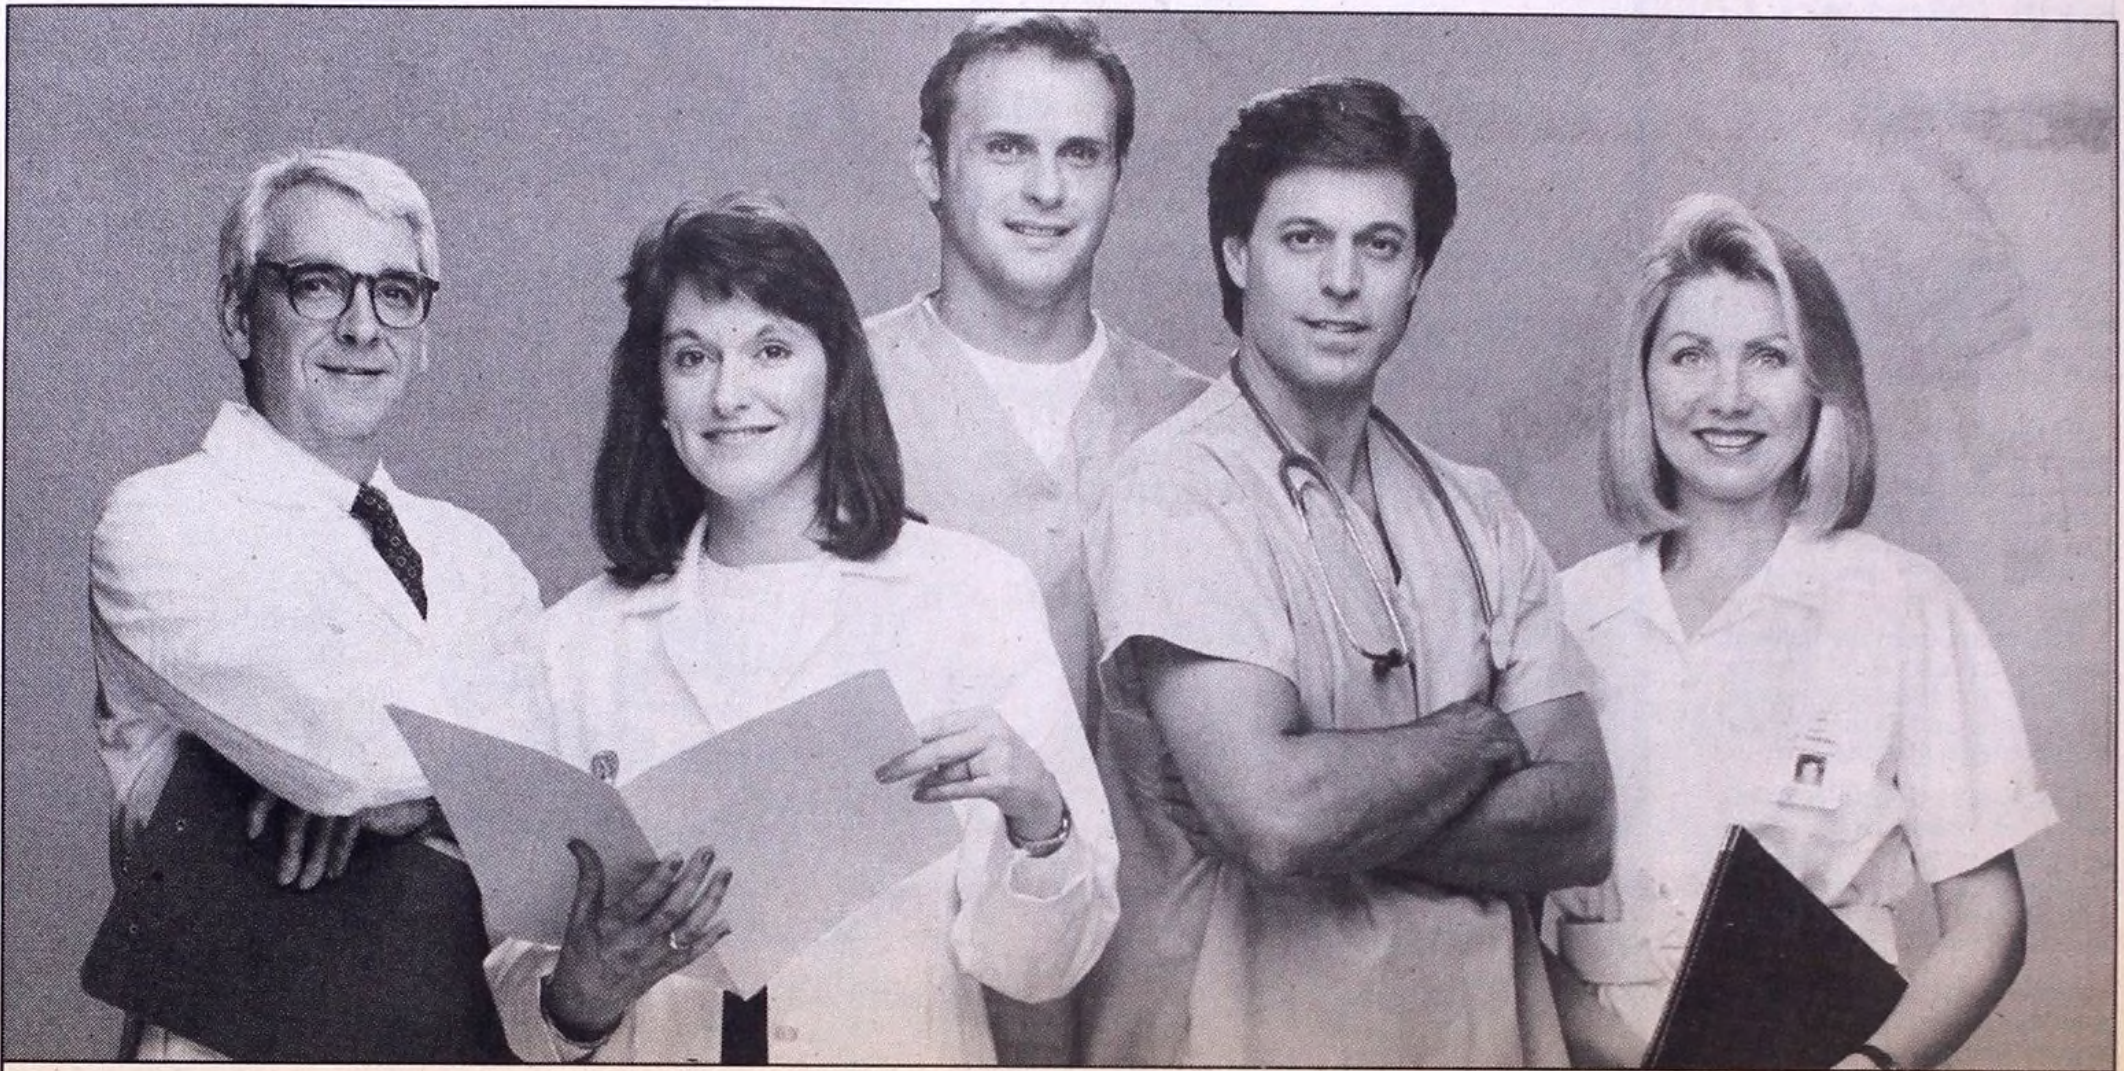

Unfortunately, Millard said, she does not see an end to the Van Buren School District economic problems in the near future.

"I don't believe a millage increase will pass in another election, and I don't know how the district will be able to handle their finances," Millard said. "I hope, for the sake of my son, and other elementary pupils, that the problems will be resolved before they enter high school."

Her son, William, is a student at Savage Elementary School, and her daughter, Dina, is a Belleville High School student, who is slated to graduate in another year.

Millard, who had previously been employed as the secretary to the vice president for academic affairs at Eastern Michigan University, returned to part-time work in the latter part of the 1980s, and took her post with the chamber of commerce in mid-1989.

Area high school student looks to new decade with hope

By DANIEL CALABRESE
ANP Staff Writer

When the 1980s began, the high school seniors of today were only 7 or 8 years old.

What they remember about the '80s include the first clear images of their lives, and what they expect from the 1990s will be some of their most important expectations.

Valerie Gildhaus, a senior at Plymouth-Canton High School, remembers tragedies in the '80s she hopes have taught important lessons for the '90s.

Gildhaus is a member of the National Honor Society and the swim team at Plymouth-Canton. She plans to attend the University of Michigan and major in child and adolescent psychology.

"Every single time someone would take off, it would crash," Gildhaus said.

While she said her statement is an exaggeration, Gildhaus said it captured what seemed to be the theme of the '80s - earthquakes, hurricanes and airline disasters.

But it also tended to bring out the best in people, Gildhaus said, and she hopes that trend will continue as the '90s begin.

"I think it was very, very good in that there seemed to be a real sense of unity," she said. "People really tried to help each other."

each other."

As she prepares to enter college, Gildhaus said one of the reasons she plans to study child and adolescent psychology is her concern for young people.

"It seems like right now, the more I read, the more I hear, more and more people are becoming rebellious and getting involved in drugs," Gildhaus said. "When I was in ninth grade, people who even touched a cigarette were shunned."

Today, marijuana use and rebellious behavior at home and in school are widespread and are accepted by many people who do not engage in it themselves, she said.

"If these are the people who are going to be running our country, it's kind of scary," Gildhaus said.

One of the most important lessons Gildhaus will take into the '90s is people should have faith in what they can accomplish.

"Don't underestimate anything," she said. "If you think you can't do something, don't underestimate yourself."

Locally, Gildhaus said she hopes controversy will end at the high schools.

Just as some citizens have tried to remove educational materials they object to from the schools, Gildhaus said school officials have been somewhat unresponsive to some student groups whose views may be unpopular.

"On one side of the mouth, they say, 'Let the kids learn.' On the other hand, they say, 'It's too dangerous.'"

On a bigger scale, Gildhaus said she believes the United States is in good shape as the nation moves into the next decade.

She expressed cautious confidence in President George Bush.

"I tend to think he's got more head on his shoulders than Reagan."

She also said she expects world problems to be solved as the decade moves on.

"People's attitudes, I think, are good. And they just need to bring it together and do the right things with it," she said. "I look for a lot of positive things to happen. I think in the coming decade problems with the Soviets will end."

But while Gildhaus is optimistic about the future of superpower relations, she is not naive.

"We can only trust the Soviets so much before they turn around and bomb us," she said.

KIDNEY STONES, AN AGE-OLD PROBLEM COMPOUNDED BY MODERN WAYS

By Jorge Torriglia, M.D.

Kidney stones are an age-old problem. History reveals that archaeologists discovered kidney stones in mummies thousands of years ago.

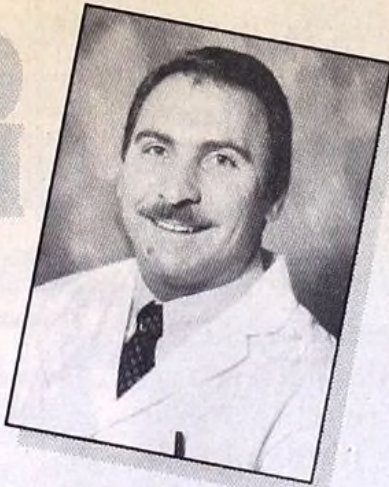

Annually, 600,000 Americans develop kidney stones. Of these, more than 100,000 require some kind of medical intervention.

Diet plays an important role in the development of kidney stones. Ways to avoid kidney stone problems are: Drink plenty of water; avoid excess amounts of teas, colas, and milk; and avoid overuse or abuse of vitamin and calcium supplements.

Males between the ages of 30 and 50 are the most likely candidates for kidney stones.

Symptoms include pain in the back or flank radiating to the genitalia, blood in the urine, and a burning sensation upon urination.

To diagnose kidney stone condition, the patient is injected with an intravenous contrast dye, then x-rayed. Stones are clearly visible on the x-ray.

Different treatments can be used to remove kidney stones depending on the individual situation. The physician determines treatment based on the severity of the patient's symptoms, number of stones, and size of the stone or stones.

The conservative approach is controlling pain through an injection of demerol or morphine, increasing water intake, and observation. Most often, this is done in a hospital with intravenous fluids and analgesics. With this approach, the physician plays a waiting game, hoping the patient will pass the stone or stones naturally.

If this does not occur within a reasonable time-frame, or if the patient is too symptomatic, more aggressive therapy is indicated.

If you experience any of the kidney stone symptoms, visit a urologist for an evaluation. Next week: Other procedures for treating kidney stones.

Resolving to do a little less

Just Desserts

Sue Willett

How are those ole' new year's resolutions going? Still strong and full of resolve? Still determined to improve and change? Or, is the old determination slipping just a bit, and do those old habits look even better than ever? Yeah, me too.

Like 90 percent of the world, I, too, resolved to lose weight. No more Christmas cookies, said I. No more cheesecake. No more french silk pie, and I will avoid chocolate-covered peanuts like they carried the plague...it isn't working.

One of my other resolutions, however, is still going strong. I have decided to make my life simpler and easier. I am resorting to shortcuts in the kitchen which would make my beloved, although alcohol-sodden, grandmother turn over in her grave.

I don't care. For now, I'm going to assume it was the secondary property of juniper berries which provided her with the energy to create all those wonders that flew out of her oven as if by magic. It would take magic (or an abundance of the fermented juice of the juniper berry, which incidentally comes in a gin bottle) to provide me with the energy to create anything more taxing than a peanut butter and jelly sandwich right about now. And, it would have to be smooth peanut butter because the crunchy stuff takes too much energy to chew.

In short, I'm tired. The holidays wore me out. Exhaustion is my constant companion and misery, depression and crabbi-ness are keeping him company. The only thing that would make me feel better is chocolate (the medicinal properties are nothing short of miraculous) only it makes me fat. Being fat makes me even crankier and lazier. Hey, this is serious.

Due to my total lack of energy, I am producing only desserts which take very little time, energy or thinking. These recipes are delicious no-brainers which can be made by just about anybody who can read. This time of year, they are just what the doctor ordered. Well, these and a bottle of the aforementioned berry juice...on the rocks, please.

Creative delights

By FLORENCE MEEKS
ANP Staff Writer

Sure, most bakers can brag about their ways with batter and their talents with frosting, but let them try their hand at cake painting.

Marie Simmons loves making food "pretty" almost more than making it taste good. Cake painting with her edible set of colors is simply one method used to achieve that goal.

Often, the Inkster woman's handiwork becomes a gift to local senior citizen groups. For her, it is an excuse to be creative.

"I just get a joy out of doing it," she said.

Simmons is quick to show off a scrapbook crammed with photos of past achievements in cake - pianos, Reeboks, cartoon characters and elaborate multilevel wedding cakes.

As a supplier for a local caterer, Simmons can often turn a profit with her talent. Her most recent accomplishment was the ornate cake served at the Inkster Silverbration.

"I've been baking since I was nine. I got it from my aunt and my mom," Simmons said.

Her interest grew as a young woman when she took a job in a hospital cafeteria.

"Our job was to make food look nice. I used to like it," Simmons said.

It was her daughter's birthday eight years ago when Simmons had the opportunity to really push herself. A last-minute attempt to buy her daughter a cake failed, and she decided to make one herself. Of course a cake for such a special occasion had to be fancy, and Simmons found herself immersed in cake decorating.

From that point, she was hooked. As Simmons continuously practiced to master cake decorating she found her products improving in taste and texture.

Now, she is quite confident with most sweets.

"I just like making desserts, you have to fuss over them."

When Simmons sits down to paint a cake, she looks like a traditional artist with her palette and delicate brush. Most of the patterns drawn on the delicate rice paper she uses are from her son, Stephen. The paper dissolves when it comes in contact with liquid, she said.

"Actually, you paint it just like a picture."

Someday, Simmons said she hopes to own her own bakeshop with a display of her paintings and other pretty edibles.

When she looked for recipes to contribute to this article, Simmons opted for those that create impressive results. Some of them, however, are quite simple to prepare and demand little time.

Gingerbread with butterscotch pear sauce

1/3 cup sugar
1 cup light or dark molasses
3/4 cup hot water

Gus Georgiadis

Business built on tradition

By JOHN AGGE
ANP Staff Writer

The American dream is happening for Gus and Sofia Georgiadis, Greek immigrants and owners of Sofia's, a small chain of successful tailoring and dry cleaner outlets in Wayne County.

"We believe in this country," Gus Georgiadis said in his broken English. "In Greece, you worked to live. Here, you can work to be something more, to have more." The success the Georgiadis' have achieved is a tribute to the hard work, sacrifice and a genuine caring they have for others.

Gus and Sofia left Greece in 1973 with their four children and little more.

Sofia had trained in tailoring and worked for three years with a Greek seamstress in the village of Orestias.

Gus was a laborer who knew how to work hard.

They left Greece because "if your father was a lawyer, you were a lawyer. If your father was a worker, you were a worker. I wanted an opportunity for my family to be more," Gus said.

They lived with a brother in Chicago for a time, then moved to the Ann Arbor area when the priest at a church there needed someone to help sing the hymns and keep the church clean. Gus was the man for the job.

Sofia would help him with his janitorial duties. Later, they branched out to do restaurant cleaning at night while their children slept.

In 1979, Sofia rented a small room and started tailoring with the sewing machine she bought for $25 at the Salvation Army.

She closed the shop in 1980 when she came home one night and found a grease fire in her kitchen. She said she knew she was away from her children too much.

It wasn't until 1984 that Sofia tried her hand at commercial tailoring again.

She and Gus opened the first Sofia's on Liberty Street in Ann Arbor.

Three years later, they opened another shop in Ann Arbor on Maple Street. Now they have shops in Farmington Hills, Livonia and Canton, in addition to the original stores.

Sofia is meticulous in her work.

"I don't care if the customer can't tell that it's not right. If I can tell, then I'll rip it apart and fix it right," Sofia said.

She also is more interested in her customers getting a good value for their money, instead of being just interested in their money.

"If someone wants so many repairs to a garment, I'll tell them it is not worth it to them to fix, or I cut my price if they really want it fixed," Sofia said.

Gus said Sofia's customer-oriented attitude has not made her a favorite boss at times.

"Some tailors that work for us get mad sometimes, but they are not the customer," he said.

Besides quality workmanship, Sofia's also offers pickup and delivery service at no extra charge. Gus said the response has been very good.

"Customers like it. If we say we come at 2 p.m., at five minutes to 2 p.m., we are walking up to the door," Gus said.

While the hours are still long and the work demanding, Gus and Sofia are looking ahead to even greater opportunity. They want to continue to expand their business, but they also take great pride in their family.

The children are grown now, and three of them help run the business. One son is in the Army, stationed in Hawaii. Their eldest daughter recently gave birth to their first grandchild, a girl.

"We love U.S.A.," Gus said. "We pray for good things to happen to this country. This is paradise."

Southwestern struggles past Belleville, 67-56

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

A Belleville "dry spell" in the middle quarters and excessive personal fouls helped Detroit Southwestern, the No.1 ranked Class A basketball team in the state and No.4 ranked nationally, eke out a 67-56 victory over Coach Michael Garland and his Tigers at the Willow Run High Invitational last week.

Belleville earned a shot at the nationally recognized Detroiters thanks to a 75-66 victory over the hosts, Willow Run. The Prospectors of Southwestern got to the finals with a 30-point victory over a state-ranked Ann Arbor Huron club.

Garland, who had plenty of reasons to be depressed going into the holiday tournament (the Tiger coach had been laid off from his teaching job), provided the emotional leadership for his Tigers, who stayed with the Prospectors the first eight minutes of the game. The two teams were tied at 18-all.

As the second period began, Paul Gardette tossed in a field goal to give the Tigers their first lead of the game, 20-18. However, that lead was short-lived as the Prospectors came back and outscored their rivals 18-8 the rest of the quarter, lifting them to a 36-28 advantage.

Garland also had to summon early his top scorer Ron Hunter to the bench. Hunter was slapped with two quick personal fouls and was neutralized, though he did play the final period, most of the game. Garland also had to use Andrew Wells and Derrick Boles sparsely because they, too, found themselves in foul trouble.

Though the Tigers, behind Gardette's long-rang artillery - he had four three-pointers for the game - managed to make the Prospectors sweat it out the rest of the evening, they never saw the lead again.

They could have made it even closer with some accuracy at the free throw line. Belleville made eight of 22, while the Prospectors canned 12 of 15 personals.

Nonetheless Garland was proud of his team.

"We played a good game against an outstanding team," the Tiger coach said. "If our inside people had not gotten into foul trouble, I believe it would have been even a better game.

"And I think our kids learned a very important lesson - no matter what the papers say how good you are, you have to go out there and prove it every game. Our kids stood up to Detroit, and I know they earned respect from them."

Gardette finished with a team high 18 points and Boles had 11 for the losers. The Detroiters, undefeated in seven games, this year and perennial state finalists (they have reached the state championships 11 times in the past 15 years) were lead by Jalen Rose, who also had 18.

In the first round, Belleville had a tough time shaking off a

Ron Hill led all scorers with 19 points, while Wells contributed 17 and Hunter added 11.

Belleville returns to Wolverine 'A' Conference action Tuesday night at Monroe. They'll take a perfect 3-0 record up against the Trojans, who share the title with Belleville and Wayne Memorial.

Romulus cagers win own holiday tournament title Eagles coast to victory over Huron

Board suspends coach

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

New Boston Huron may have won their first basketball game of the season during the holidays, but they have also lost their coach.

Coach Larry Swick was suspended by the Huron Board of Education in the wake of complaints to the board by parents of team members who were disciplined by the veteran coach.

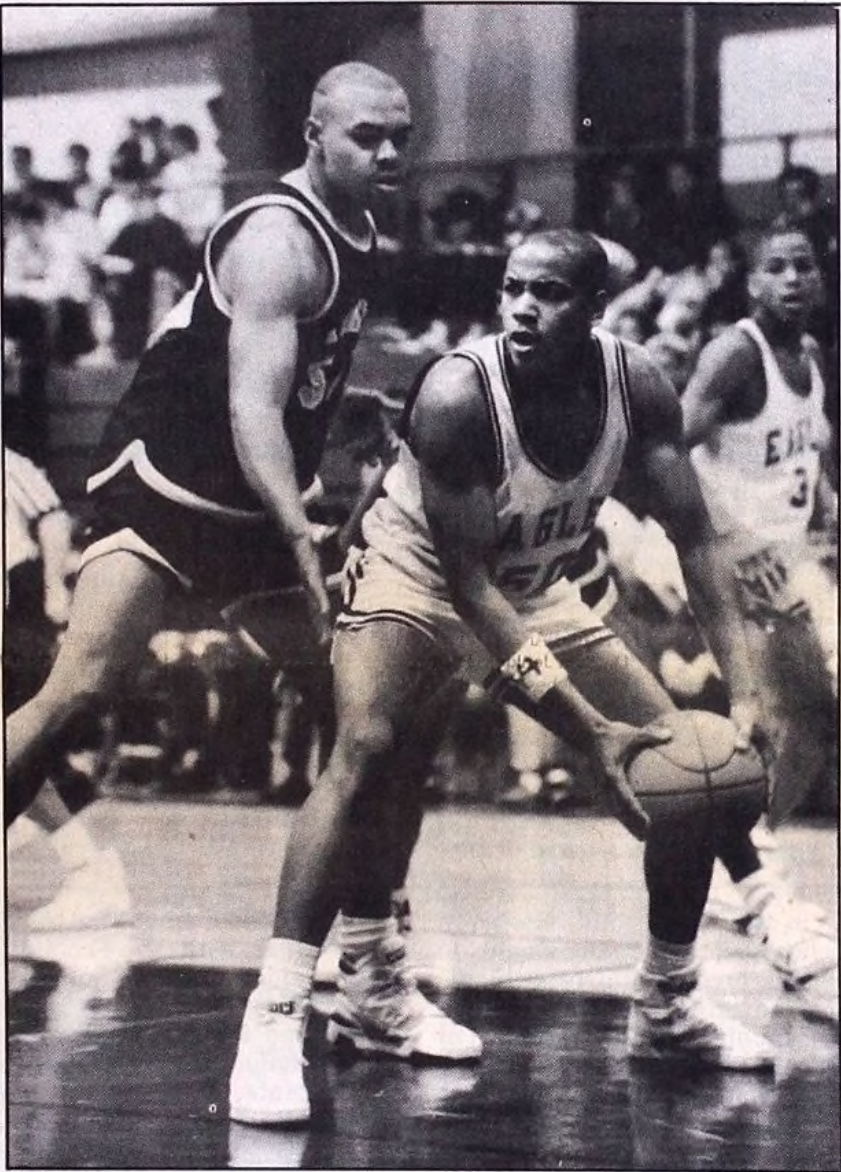

"I took disciplinary action against some players," Swick said, "and their parents complained to the board (of education). Subsequently, I was informed by the board that I am on temporary suspension.

"I really don't want to discuss this until our superintendent returns," Swick added. "I was only trying to do my job. I know that I did the right thing, as a coach, and a teacher to discipline the kids involved."

Huron School Superintendent Gary Jackson was out-of-town and unavailable for comment at press time.

Also, board members refused to comment, pending a complete inquiry.

Swick refused to comment further, but added that the varsity coaching reins have been turned over to Terry Suemnick, the junior varsity coach.

Romulus co-captain Larry Perkins (at left, white jersey, seen here in the Belleville game) continued his outstanding play as he scored 16 points against New Boston Huron last Thursday to lift the Eagles to a 90-54 victory over the Chiefs in the championship game of the inaugural Romulus High Holiday Basketball Tournament.

First-year Romulus basketball coach Chris Molloy received a belated Christmas gift Thursday as his Eagles presented him with a pair of victories at the inaugural Romulus Holiday Invitational.

The Eagles soared past New Boston Huron, 90-54, in the championship round, the night after they rallied to beat Taylor Kennedy, 71-51, in the first round of play.

With junior guard Torrey Mills pumping in a career high 21 points, carding nine assists, six steals and six rebounds, the hosts exploded to a 15-point first-period lead (28-13) and the outcome of the game against New Boston was never questioned after the initial quarter.

"What pleased me the most was the way our kids played defense," said Molloy, whose club held previously undefeated Taylor Kennedy to 51 points in the qualifying round. (Huron's path to the title bout included their first victory of the season, 61-59, overtime win over Lincoln Park.)

Mills, younger brother of Terry, former Romulus High All-American who led the Eagles to their only state championship and helped the University of Michigan win the NCAA national crown a year ago, turned in a superb all-around performance.

"He was exceptional," Molloy said of the junior playmaker. "We're looking for great things from him."

Larry Perkins, Kelvin Brown and Melvin Carr each sank six points to stake the Eagles to their 15-point lead, and Romulus went on to a 44-27 halftime advantage before racing ahead 62-46 for three-quarters, despite the heroics of Huron's Matt Holtan and Phil Phipps.

Phipps connected on eight of his attempts from the field and made five of his seven free throws to offset Mills' 21. Holtan counted 17 points before the shooting ended. However, they were the only two to reach double figures, while Romulus put Perkins, Marlin Hicks and Virgil Davis also into double digits. Perkins finishes with 16 and Marlin had 15 while point guard Davis chipped in 10.

Rocks win hotly contested wrestling 'B' tournament

By JOHN AGGE
ANP Staff Writer

The grapplers from Plymouth-Salem captured their own invitational championship in a "B" wrestling tournament Dec. 28. Though the "B" tournament was for reserves and did not count in the standings, it was a hotly contested affair.

The Rock reserves finished with 211 points, out-distancing second-place Romulus by 15.5 points. John Glenn was third with 173 points.

The "B" team invitational is designed to give wrestlers who do not wrestle often a chance to compete against other matmen. The tournament gives younger wrestlers the experience and confidence to compete at a higher level in the future.

"We have a lot of young wrestlers not able to make our 'A' or 'B' teams, kids that come to practice every day. This tournament gives them a chance to compete," Plymouth-Canton coach Ray Givens said.

Givens' team was mostly freshmen who had not even worn a wrestling uniform before the Salem Invitational. Canton finished the tournament in 7th place with 85 points, but Givens said it was "a fun day."

"I was very pleased with the whole tournament," John

Glenn coach Tom Buckalew said. "The coaches work on the honor system not to send their very best wrestlers, so its a great training opportunity. A kid can get hot at the tournament, and go on to wrestle varsity for the rest of the year."

The Salem coaches were very pleased with the support the parents gave the invitational this year. Salem assistant coach Greg Woochuk also said that while winning the tournament was nice, the development of the young men is an important result of the tournament.

"The parents were a great help. They really put a lot of work in to make the tournament a success," Woochuk said. "I think the kids learn more than just wrestling at the tournament. They learn things they can use in other parts of their lives."

The top local finishers in the 12-team tourney were:

In the 103-pound division - third place, Colin Trombetta, Salem; fourth place, Tom Pace, Glenn.

In the 112-pound division - first place, Brennen Udell, Glenn; third place, Dan Phillips, Salem.

At 119 pounds - third place, DeJohn Connors, Glenn; fourth place, Dave Yack, Canton.

At 125 pounds - third place, Jeff Zarosley, Salem; sixth place, Larry Carr, Glenn.

At 130 pounds - first place, Keith Jackson, Glenn.

At 135 pounds - third place, Josh Viau, Salem.

At 140 pounds - first place, Ryan Wilson, Glenn; third place, Adam Gollovay, Salem.

In the 145-pound division - fifth place, Andy Boguszkeski, Glenn.

In the 152-pound division - second place, Todd Valentine, Salem; fourth place, Shane Hall, Glenn; sixth place, Joe Gorsich, Churchill.

At 160 pounds - first place, George Young, Canton; second place, John Buja, Salem.

At 171 pounds - second place, Dana Kozykoski, Canton; fourth place, Jim Sanders, Glenn; fifth place, Tim Galda, Salem.

At 189 pounds - first place, Tony Perkins, Salem; third place, Mark Meszaro, Canton; fifth place, Tom Rogerio, Glenn.

Local athletes are iced in Detroit meet

By JOHN AGGE
ANP Staff Writer

Goalie Bill Pye was looking forward to the Great Lakes Invitational, the college hockey tournament played during the holiday season at the Joe Louis Arena in Detroit. So was defenseman Pete Podrasky.

After all, Northern is a long way from Canton Township, where both players grew up. It's not often that they are able to put their hockey skills on display in front of family and friends. In fact, the only other time NMU participated in the event was in 1983, when Pye and Podrasky were in their teens.

Unfortunately for Pye and Podrasky, NMU made little of the second appearance in the tourney as they lost the first round game 7-1 to eventual champion Michigan Dec. 29.

Michigan Tech completed the sweep of the Huskies the next day with a 5-1 drubbing in the consolation game.

In the game against Michigan, Pye gave up three goals in four shots by the Wolverines in the first eight minutes of the game. Northern was never in the game after that. Podrasky, for his part, didn't fare much better as he and his defensive partners were repeatedly beaten by the Wolverine offense for quality goal-scoring chances. The only Huskie goal was scored by Livonia native Mark Beaufait, a sophomore center.

"I feel especially bad for our kids from Detroit," Northern coach Rick Comley said. "This one will stick with them for awhile."

Comley used backup goalie Bob Kruhac in the consolation game against Tech in lieu of Pye.

Prior to the GLI tournament, Pye and Podrasky were members of the U.S. Select team that played a two-game series with Sokol-Kiev of the Soviet Union.

"We won 5-2, and then tied 4-4. We played very well against a style we're not used to," Podasky said.

"We weren't expected to do that well," Pye said. "I didn't play the first game, but in the second one they had 39 shots on the net. I made a few big saves.

Horrendous holidays Robichaud routed at Aquinas cage invitational

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

Coach Ron Tarrant probably is wondering what he's done to deserve such treatment from Santa.

There was nothing but headaches and defeat at the bottom of the first-year Robichaud cage coach's stocking put there by Southgate Aquinas and Detroit DePorres at the holiday tournament.

Robichaud is winless in its first six starts this season.

And, if that wasn't enough, Tarrant benched All-State grizzer Tyrone Wheatley after the multi-talented athlete was a "no show" for a practice.

"It's been a hectic week," said Tarrant, whose club has not only failed to in 1989 but will begin 1990 facing none other than natural rival, Inkster.

It's obvious we have some problems. But I believe, in time, they can be resolved.

— Ron Tarrant
Robichaud cage coach

"We've been trying different combinations, but the results haven't improved.

"We have a lot of learning to do."

Inkster will host the first of two Suburban Athletic Conference games on Tuesday, Jan. 9. The Bulldogs have no one scheduled for this Friday (Jan. 5).

In the opener at Southgate, Robichaud failed to get a single player into double figures, shot horrendously at the foul line (they made four of 20 offerings) and dropped a 70-26 decision - their worst basketball setback of the 1980s.

Asked whether Aquinas was "that good or Robichaud that bad", Tarrant replied: "We didn't do anything right against them. They are a good team - and we are, at the present, a very bad team."

And, in this case, folks, bad doesn't mean good.

In the consolation game, played Saturday, the Bulldogs showed some life thanks to Andrew Parham and William Fleming, but the Dearborn Heights cagers fell apart in the second half.

DePorres grabbed a nine-point (34-25) halftime lead, then raced ahead by as much as 20 the rest of the way before handling the Bulldogs their sixth straight setback of the young campaign, 71-46.

Parham broke into the double digit scoring column with 13 points, while Fleming added nine.

How does the Robichaud coach view the matchup between his club and Inkster?

"George (George Thompson, Inkster coach) has an excellent team," Tarrant replied. "They played Flint Beecher at the Palace and gave them a pretty solid game. Beecher is ranked as high as No. 1 in the state's Class B polls by some newspapers.

"It's obvious, we have some problems," Tarrant continued "but I believe they can be corrected. It's going to take time."

Undefeated Tigers eye Salem crown

Coach Gerald Malecek and the Belleville Tigers greeted the New Year and the new decade with an impeccable 6-0 dual meet record.

And the veteran wrestling coach would like nothing better from his aspiring grapplers than to add the prestigious Plymouth Salem Invitational title to their list of accomplishments.

Seventeen teams have accepted the challenge to compete at the tournament, which will get underway on Saturday at Plymouth Salem H.g.h.

"It's going to be tough getting the kids back into shape after the holidays and long layoff," said Malecek, who admitted that his club hasn't

What hurts is that you can walk down the hallways of the school and see some kids who have the potential of developing into outstanding wrestlers. And they won't come out for the team.

Belleville wrestling coach had a formal practice since competing in a triangular meet involving nonleague rivals Brighton and Pinckney. "But this will be an added incentive to get out the holiday winks."

Classes are scheduled to resume in the Van Buren School District until Monday, Jan. 8.

Although Malecek believes that Portage Central, the defending Salem Invitational champ, will be the team to beat for the title, he is not counting out "any surprises".

"Whenever you come back from a long layoff, as most of us are doing, sometimes you have to start from scratch. So, a team that has stayed in conditions during the holidays, would have a better chance of winning this tournament."

Belleville, the defending Wolverine 'A' Conference champ, also will face a tough early test for its title rights. The Tigers will meet Trenton on the mats on Jan. 11, and the Trojans are considered the likely heirs to the Belleville throne if the champs falter.

And that could happen if the Belleville coach doesn't fill in his depth chart.

"Our team depth concerns me," Malecek said. "That's where we are most vulnerable - we lack depth. We only have one heavyweight and one 189. And there are holes to fill in the middle of our lineup."

"And do you know what hurts the most? - it's that when you walk down the halls of the school you can single out some kids who could be developed into outstanding wrestlers. The potential is there, but they refuse to come out for the team."

Eagles

The victory lifted Romulus to a 4-2 record for the first-part of the 1989-90 campaign. The Eagles will resume action on Friday when they travel to Highland Park, home of the defending Suburban Athletic Conference champs.

In the first round, Kennedy managed to keep the Eagles in check for two quarters thanks to the efforts of Mike Giacomantonio, who delivered all of his 17 points in the first half. The visitors also managed to make 11 of 12 of their free throws.

However, Romulus, behind a balanced scoring assault, led by Perkins, outscored their rivals 24-8 in the third period and erased a 33-32 halftime deficit. Perkins tossed in 20 points and gave the Eagles control of the boards with 18 rebounds. Hicks added 15 points and nine rebounds while Davis accounted for 13 points. Mills also provided the winners with nine points, nine assists and five steals.

The loss snapped Kennedy's five-game winning streak.

"I felt Virgil (Davis) did an exceptional job running the team," Molloy said. "Along with those 13 points, he also had 10 assists."

*A Guide to the 1990 North American International
Auto Show*

JANUARY 6-14, 1990

Saturday marks the first day of the North American International Auto Show at Cobo Exhibition and Convention Center in Detroit. This is the second year that the event, sponsored by the Detroit Auto Dealers Association, has attained international status.

More than 40 auto manufacturers from around the globe will display their finest truck and car designs at the show. Nearly 30 new cars will be introduced to the public during the eight-day run of the show. Futuristic concept cars, and new models from American and foreign auto makers will debut.

The new Concept Center will feature the latest advances in automotive design, manufacturing and performance technology. The Automotive News World Congress will be staged in conjunction with the auto show.

All of this will occupy 600,000 square-feet of display area at Cobo. ■

Detroit auto show grows up to be great

By LINDA SPARKMAN
Special to ANP

In 1899, bicycle salesman William E. Metzger talked Seneca G. Lewis, a hardware merchant, into renting the Light Guard Armory to display sporting goods and automobiles.

They called their event the "Tri-State Sportsmen's and Automobile Association." Today, we call it the North American International Auto Show.

The first show advertised that mounted, African animal heads would be displayed, hoping to attract a crowd. Organizers of the show this year are anticipating 450,000 people will attend the show Jan. 6 to 14 at Cobo Hall, just to see some new cars.

If the name Metzger sounds familiar, it is because Metzger sold his bicycle shop and eventually became the father of the Cadillac Motor Company.

Metzger knew a winning product when he saw one, and in spite of complaints about "the lack of horses and livestock" at his show, he trusted his instincts that the "horseless carriage" would become a practical vehicle.

In 1907, the Detroit Automotive Dealers Association was formed to promote the automobile. Charter members represented Ford, Oldsmobile, Buick and Cadillac. Their first auto show was held at Beller's Beer Garden.

The early shows were more promotions for wooden wheels, livestock and clothing, although automobiles were displayed. Eventually, as the auto industry grew, cars and trucks took over as the primary products promoted at the show.

As technology advanced, so did the offerings. In the early days, attendees were treated to a fashion show of motoring garments worn to protect riders from open cab hazards.

Soon guests witnessed innovative products, such as rubber tires, which replaced spoked wooden wheels.

Headlights were introduced, replacing candle burning lamps. Two-cylinder engines evolved to eight-cylinder engines.

Detroit was the place to see what was new.

"We will have more new products introduced at this year's show than at any other show in the world," said Daniel Hayes, show manager. "This includes 21 domestic products, 12 concept cars and 11 North American introductions."

The annual show did have a 17-year reprieve as the auto industry, along with the entire country, focused on the great world wars.

Post-war prosperity brought automakers an unprecedented opportunity as young families purchased vehicles as fast as manufacturers could produce them.

The 1950s brought bold new designs, such as tail-fins, two-tone paint and powerful engines.

The Detroit Auto Show had moved to the State Fairgrounds, but because it had more space, New York was the home of the National Auto Show.

In 1960, Detroit took back its national status when President Dwight D. Eisenhower gave the opening speech at the first auto show staged in the newly-completed Cobo Hall.

Each year continues to bring new developments to the show.

"For the past 10 years we've had local high school bands march through the displays," Hayes said. "We also instituted 'radio row,' which is where local radio shows broadcast directly from the auto show. This year, 24 stations will broadcast from the show."

Some popular models that had their debut at Cobo Hall are the Corvette, Ford Mustang, Porsche and the Volkswagen Beetle.

The van conversion section of the show, introduced 10 years ago, has turned into "the largest retail van conversion show in the country," he said.

When the auto dealers association changed the name of the show to "The North American International Auto Show" a few years ago, the change reflected the true international aspect of the show.

"We're really the only show that has set as a goal a truly international show," Hayes said.

Of the 700 to 800 cars and trucks on display, many are foreign models.

Little-known facts about the show

- William Metzger, the father of the Detroit Auto Show, received complaints on the "lack of livestock and horses" at the 1900 show.
- Henry Ford allowed the Detroit Auto Dealers Association to use his company's plant in downtown Detroit for the Auto Show during the early 1920s.
- General Motors is the largest employer in Michigan with 201,239 full-time employees.
- There will be 70 displays at Cobo Center this year, and some will require as many as five days to assemble. There will be 600,000 square-feet of carpeting to be vacuumed nightly. It will cost $45,000 to heat the hall during the show. The total value of the production of the 700 display vehicles is $13 million.
- There will be approximately 152,000 commuters taking advantage of the downtown transit system.
- The Detroit Chamber of Commerce reports a 40-percent increase in restaurant activity for the week of the show.
- The Detroit Auto Dealers Association expects more than 1,000 credentialed auto executives to visit the show.

Reatta craftsmen will assemble cars for crowd at auto show

From assembling cars on the showroom floor, to building showcases of quality craftsmanship, union personnel will play a key role in the success of the 1990 North American International Auto Show.

More than 600 highly-skilled riggers, electricians and carpenters will put together one of the biggest shows Cobo Center hosts.

One of the largest displays in the 55,000-square-foot Concept Center will be a tribute to the United Auto Workers and manufacturers partnership.

General Motors Corp. will have UAW workers on hand to showcase how they produce cars.

Workers from the GM Buick division will actually assemble its Reatta luxury sport coupe on the showroom floor.

Each day of the show, two teams divided between 17 workers, will take turns assembling the car in six-hour shifts. Workers will double as narrators, describing the processes being displayed as the Reatta is assembled.

"The team concept that is used in assembling the Reatta is very unique," said Dick Thompson, GM spokesman. "We felt it would make for a very unique and interesting display at the show, so we brought the idea straight to the plant workers. The hourly personnel then designed and developed the entire display. Every 30 minutes, assembly personnel will install the seats, instrument panel and windshield on a Reatta body. The body will be moved by an electronic vehicle to an awaiting chassis, where the two units will be assembled together."

The big sell

Auto show expected to boost sales

By PAMELA LANDIS
ANP News Editor

The show sells. Area car dealers say they are counting on the North American International Auto Show in Detroit to help them get over the sales blahs. The show, Jan. 6 to 14 in Cobo Center, will exhibit the newest, the latest and the weirdest in automobiles. The auto industry is experiencing a sales slump, with all major manufacturers posting sales declines. Still, there is a headlight at the end of the tunnel with the auto show. Joe Himmelspace, general sales manager of Crestwood

Dodge in Westland, said the auto show always increases interest in new cars. "It helps our January traffic," he said. "We expect it will help us over the next two, three, four months." The buyers who attend the auto show also are more knowledgeable than others, said Lynn Derrick, sales manager of the Isuzu line at John Rogin Buick-Isuzu in Wayne. "People have it narrowed down to what they want," he said. The auto show provides an important boost for business, too, Derrick said. "I'm really hoping that it will bail us out," he said. "When you have 500,000 to 600,000 people there - well that's a pretty good market segment." The people who attend the show usually are car enthusiasts and people interested in buying a vehicle in the next year, Derrick said. "The buyers are much more aware of what they are looking for," Himmelspace said. "A lot of people - when they come into the dealership - don't have a clue as to what they want. But when they've been to the auto show, it helps them key into what they want." Derrick said he believes it is easier for people to shop at the auto show because all the cars and all the models are under one roof.

New Escort and Explorer introduced by Ford

By JOHN AGGE
ANP Staff Writer

Nearly everyone in western Wayne County knows how wildly successful the Ford Escort has been in the '80s. After all, many of them have been produced right in Wayne.

But not everyone knows just exactly what the new 1991 Escort will be like. Those who attend the 1990 North American International Auto Show in Detroit Jan. 6 through 14 will find out as Ford unveils the new Escort, a new compact utility truck called the Explorer and a concept design car named the Ghia Via.

The new Escort will be available to dealers on a very limited basis in early 1990 as a 1991 model. By April of this year, most dealers should have at least one Escort in stock, Ford General Sales Manager P.M. Novell said.

Ford offers in the Escort a new, modern style that provides more glass area and improved visibility, a more spacious interior on virtually the same size frame, and a power-train subframe lifted from the very successful Taurus.

A broader option package is also to be available on the Escort, including a power moonroof and power door locks on certain models. The GT model will also have as an option a 16-valve performance engine.

The 1991 Explorer production schedule should parallel that of the Escort, with availability to dealers being no later than April 1990. The Explorer will be available in both two- and four-door models as the replacement to the poor publicity-plagued Bronco II.

Ford seeks to capitalize on the current consumer trend to purchase utility trucks instead of passenger cars. The rounded exterior design and flush glass on the four-door model should appeal to the family looking for more flexibility in a vehicle than a sedan can afford, but still demands an attractive and comfortable vehicle.

The two-model is geared more toward a youthful consumer looking for a sporty appearance in a truck. Both models can carry up to 3,500 pounds, an increase of 1,500 pounds of capacity from the 1990 Bronco II model. Standard on both models is the 4.0 liter Electronic Fuel Injected V-6 engine, as is the anti-lock brake system.

Details of the Ford concept car, the Ghia Via, were not available before press time, which gives the public one more reason to investigate the 33,000-square-foot Ford display at the Cobo Center starting Saturday.

Lexus fever

This Toyota Lexus was an immediate success following its introduction at the 1989 North American International Auto Show in Detroit. More than 4,500 cars were sold during September, the first month the car was made available to the public. New models of the luxury car will be introduced this year at the show. ANP file photo

Safety

Added features meet regulations

By PAMELA LANDIS
ANP News Editor

Most car buyers rely on the salespeople to tell them about new safety features found on automobiles, according to area car dealers.

In all 1990 models, air bags will be offered as options. Many cars will feature anti-lock brakes, front-wheel drive and child-proof door locks as standard equipment.

The push for more safety features partially has been fueled by consumer groups demanding the federal government to bring on increased regulation.

And while many automakers had been reluctant to add the features, most realize now important safety is in selling the vehicles.

Safety is part of the sell.

Joe Himmelsbach, general sales manager of Crestwood Dodge in Westland, said the safety options "are relatively new, but a long time in coming."

For instance, all Chrysler products will have airbags as standard equipment.

"If a customer is aware of the options, they do ask for it," he said. "But most customers rely on the salesman to tell them about it."

— Lynn Derrick
sales manager

Lynn Derrick, sales manager of the Isuzu line at John Rogin Buick-Isuzu in Wayne, said he finds many customers are "shocked at some of the safety features."

Still, these options are tools for the salespeople to use, Derrick and Himmelsbach said.

"It's a salesman's responsibility as a representative of the product to tell people what the safety features are," Derrick said.

The features now help justify, for the buyer, the cost of the new car.

"A lot are now built into cars," Himmelsbach said. "We tell people how the tires will last longer, the car needs fewer tune-ups and how the brakes last longer."

That reasoning appeals to the consumer, Derrick said.

"With today's car prices as high as they are, it's important for people to know all the value they are getting," he said. "It's the perceived value. People appreciate it when the car has these features."

American cars compete for prestigious award

By JOHN AGGE
ANP Staff Writer

The envelope please... For the second consecutive year, Motor Trend's "Car of the Year" will be crowned at the North American International Auto Show in Detroit. The award will be presented Jan. 5 to the best domestic automobile of the year.

"This award recognizes the substantial amount of time, effort, talent and money that is necessary to produce a very special automobile," said Robert E. Brown, publisher of Motor Trend magazine.

Brown cited Detroit's eminence in the industry and its renewed global stature as the deciding factors in moving the annual award ceremony from Los Angeles. The best car award began in 1951.

In the category of best domestic car in 1990, the nominees are...

The Reatta Convertible - Buick

Lansing has outdone itself on this world-class limited production 2-seater. In the very exclusive class of luxury 2-seaters, Buick has achieved the high standards that an owner of a $35,000-plus automobile would certainly expect.

Performance? It's here. The 3800 V-6 fuel-injected engine fires a charge of fuel and air directly into each cylinder at the precise moment needed for combustion. The result? A smooth and responsive acceleration.

The 4-wheel independent Gran Touring suspension and front-wheel-drive provides control and smoothness. The Reatta comes equipped with anti-lock brakes and a unique, hand-prepared clearcoat finish.

In fact, the Reatta convertible is built in part by hand, instead of the usual production assembly line.

Brian Leggett, sales manager for John Rogin Buick in

Wayne, toured the Reatta Craft Center in Lansing where the car is built.

"Where an assembly line may turn out 3,000 cars in a day, the Craft Center may produce 40 Reattas," Leggett said.

The Reatta interior has nearly every convenience and luxury available in a car. It includes a digital speedometer, Electronic Touch Climate Control air conditioning, a six speaker stereo system with graphic equalizer and adjustable bucket seats. The Reatta also has as much roominess as possible for a two-seater.

Leggett said he expects to receive the first shipments of Reatta Convertibles by February.

The Lumina - Chevrolet

The Lumina wins high marks for satisfying the demands of the growing American family - more room, more room, more room!

Chevy's largest-ever front drive car has room for six adults and a spacious 15.7 cubic-foot trunk. This family sedan is so big that while traveling on those family vacations, junior practically has to walk over to his sister to fight with her in the back seat.

The Lumina interior provides an extremely spacious, quiet environment. The cloth seats have reclining backs and are protected by Scotchgard Fabric Protector. This of course makes messes easier to clean and also helps the upholstery look newer longer.

Chevrolet offers the steady 2.5 liter L-4 Electronic Fuel Injected engine as standard equipment. EPA estimates put the Lumina mileage rating at 21 in the city and 27 on the highway. Also included in the standard package are power four-wheel disc brakes, a stainless steel exhaust system and side window defoggers.

Toronado Trofeo - Oldsmobile

One of the things you have to like about Oldsmobile is that they don't pull any punches with their marketing strategy. They plead with us that "this is not (repeat not!) your father's Oldsmobile."

Olds also realized that they made mistakes in regard to the Toronado model in years past so they completely redesigned the car, pumping millions of dollars into it. The result is a stylish, sporty, responsive nominee for Car of the Year with a price tag unchanged from 1989.

The Trofeo is the classier version of the standard Toronado, with added leather upholstery, anti-lock brakes, a stiffer suspension and larger performance tires on 16-inch rims. The Trofeo's base price is $25,000.

The low-slung, front-wheel drive Trofeo serves up the latest in user-friendly technology. The in-dash Driver Information System features a digital readout for driving range, distance to destination, miles per gallon and more at the touch of a button. There is also an available Visual Information Center which uses a cathode ray tube screen in the dash, allowing the passengers views of up to 51 different full-color displays. A phone is also available as an option.

Standard on the Trofeo is an air bag, and probably for good reason. Once you start playing with all the goodies on the dashboard and make yourself comfortable in the back, thigh and lumbar controlled seats, you may forget that you're the one driving this machine.

General Motors offers a V-6, 165 horsepower engine and a four-speed automatic transaxle with overdrive in the Trofeo, certainly adequate for most road animals.

The Trofeo is covered by a three-year/50,000-mile comprehensive warranty, plus a 30-day exchange program and 24-hour roadside assistance plan.

Sid Charnock, of Charnock Olds in Dearborn, said they have been selling the Trofeo since September and sales of the model have met his expectations thus far.

The Regal Four-Door Sedan - Buick

The watchwords for the Regal four-door sedan are comfort and style. With standards such as a digital speedometer, air conditioning, AM/FM stereo, tilt steering wheel and extendable sunshades, the Regal makes for a very elegant ride.

The dependable Buick 3.1-liter V-6 engine is also standard on the Regal which makes for great gas mileage, Leggett said.

"It's not too flashy," said Leggett, who drives a two-door version of the model. "But it's great in the snow and I get over 30 miles to the gallon."

The car is slated for midyear availability and Leggett figures Rogin should receive shipment sometime in February.

"The Regal is a traditionally great car. I think the four-door sedan will give the Ford Taurus tough competition," Leggett said. "Driving the Regal is like wearing a good suit. You feel really good in it."

The Lincoln Town Car - Ford

The lone nominee not produced by a General Motors company, the Lincoln Town Car is also the biggest entry. The car weighs in at just more than 2 tons and measures a sizable 220 inches.

The Town Car is also the only Car of the Year candidate to boast a standard 8-cylinder engine. The roominess of the Lincoln is already well documented, including a huge trunk which measures 22 cubic feet.

The Town Car includes many thoughtful touches inside. Place the gearshift indicator into drive and the parking brake is automatically released. Turn on the rear defroster and you activate a heating element to help clear the outside mirrors.

The High-Level Audio System, with premium speakers and a remote 80-watt amplifier is standard and does a nice job of filling the cavernous interior.

Ford has invested much to insure that the Lincoln is one of the safest cars on the road, including controlled collapsible front and rear sections and driver-side air bags.

The Town Car has been available in the area since the fall, and the only complaint that local dealers have is not being able to keep up with demand for the car, said Joe Sesi, general manager of Sesi Lincoln/Mercury in Ypsilanti.

Gran Prix Four-Door Sedan - Pontiac

Has Pontiac excitement become too much for two doors? Apparently so, as the company introduces the four-door for 1990. A peek under the hood confirms the excitement as the Gran Prix offers a 2.3 liter Quad 4 16-valve engine and its 160 horsepower as standard equipment. The suspension system is strictly for driving mavens, with road-hugging independent suspension featuring MacPherson struts. Power rack-and-pinion steering and 4-wheel disc brakes are also standard fare.

The car has been available since the fall and Red Holman Pontiac salesman Joe Sloane thinks capturing the Car of the Year honor will boost sales.

"It sure would. The award would be a big help to salesmen and dealers in promoting the four-door," Sloane said. "The two-door still outsells the four-door, but the four-door will appeal more to the older consumer of sports cars."

The four-door Gran Prix also has an option in the Sports Appearance Package which includes a special front fascia and grille, fog lights and more.

The Cutlass Supreme Four-Door Sedan - Oldsmobile

The Cutlass Supreme also boasts a Quad 4 engine in its international models, this one churning out 180 horsepower that has outpowered both the Saab 9000 CD and the Volvo 780 turbos. The suspension system is especially tight, with specially tuned bushings and higher spring rates to keep the vehicle firmly on the ground while the driver may be happily flying through a winding curve.

Consider standards like air conditioning and a driver information center that updates the driver on mileage, fuel consumption, estimated time of arrival and estimated oil life and there is little doubt that the Cutlass Supreme is being considered for the most prestigious auto award in the industry.

With MacPherson front struts, four-wheel fully independent suspension and cast aluminum wheels, those who like to keep up with their neighbors may be able to not only keep up, they probably will be able to pass.

New Buick exudes prestige

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

The Park Avenue Ultra and the Buick Electra/Park Avenue are in a class of their own.

"There is a lot of interest generated in these cars because they are Buick's top-of-the-line models," said Brian Leggett, new sales car manager for John Rogin Buick in Wayne. "They definitely are status cars."

The cars are in dealer showrooms now.

"We have about 15 on hand right now," Leggett said.

The Ultra appeals to a discriminating kind of status driver.

"We described Ultra as a contemporary expression of status for an individual who wants even more style and comfort than is offered in the rest of the Electra/Park Avenue lineup," said Buick General Manager Edward H. Mertz. "And some of the leading auto writers have told their readers we have achieved that."

As in 1989, all Electra/Park Avenue models, except those with Gran Touring suspension, have DynaRide, a suspension system tuned and equipped to enhance Buick's traditional ride without sacrificing handling.

Buick officials say DynaRide combines deflected-disc valving and other suspension components to achieve a smoother ride over all types of roads and conditions.

Also, all Electra/Park Avenue models again are powered by the smooth 3800 V-6, 3.8-liter, 165-horsepower engine with sequential-port fuel injection, balance shaft and hydraulic roller valve lifters, coupled to a four-speed automatic transmission with overdrive.

The Park Avenue Ultra, which carries a price tag in the range of $30,000, was first introduced in January 1989, with such features as leather on the seats, doors, instrument panel and steering wheel and padded leather on the glove-box door.

Ultra also features 20-way power seats that include the conventional six-way power adjustable thigh supports, vertically adjustable lumbar supports and four-way power adjustable headrests.

The Park Avenue line, as a Buick spokesman noted, is "beauty in motion."

Niche marketing is catch phrase

It seems the auto industry has gone the way of the mini-skirt, paisley ties and pleated trousers in marketing its products. If it goes out of style, just wait until it's popular again.

The auto industry is constantly undergoing change to meet the demands of a diversifying consumer market. The days of mass producing one-dimensional cars are gone, and niche-marketing is in.

"Actually, niche-marketing is a lot like high fashion," said David Andrea, senior research assistant for the University of Michigan Transportation Research Institute. "If a certain style of clothing goes out of style, just leave it in the closet for several years and it will probably be popular again. The auto industry is experiencing that same resurgence of fashion themes. The Mazda Miata is a good example of this. Mazda has had great success with a type of car that was very popular 20 years ago."

If Paris is the bellwether for the fashion industry, then certainly Detroit and the North American International Auto Show play a similar role for the domestic auto makers.

"The floors of Cobo Hall will provide an opportunity to look at what future markets may be," Andrea explained.

By identifying a market segment before the competition and quickly delivering a unique product to that specific purchasing public, a manufacturer stands to make profits. Fashion designers call it "being in vogue"; auto executives call it "niche marketing."

It's a change in thinking from the days when Chevrolet churned out a million Caprices a year. Now, consumers have a plethora of choices in what was once a relatively narrow market.

Manufacturers are now realizing what many have suspected for a long time - there is a profitable consumer market for niche vehicles.

"I predicted that there would be a market for specialty vehicles 20 years ago when I was cutting sunroofs in Los Angeles," said Heinz Prechter, president and chairman of ASC Inc., one of America's leading coach-builders. "Back then, no one believed me."

ASC has built specialty cars for several manufacturers, and is currently doing special editions of the Ford Taurus SHO, Mustang Convertible and the Pontiac Grand Prix Turbo.

European specialty design firms have also flourished since the end of World War II.

Builders and designers such as Bertone and Pininfarina have been very profitable with specialty vehicles sold to a very narrow market.

An American niche-marketing pioneer spent a decade carrying an idea around in his head, hoping first Ford and then Chrysler would give his idea a shot. What resulted is what a GM executive called "the automotive coup of the last 20 years," according to AutoWeek magazine.

Harold Sperlich, former president of Chrysler Corp., touted a low-riding, front-wheel drive minivan for 15 years. Then, when Chrysler followed Sperlich's intuition into the market place in 1984, the minivan took the market by storm.

The Chrysler minivans have dominated the market since their introduction. In 1988, Chrysler minivans accounted for 51 percent of the minivan market, selling more than 422,400 units.

As Sperlich told AutoWeek, niche-marketing is an iffy proposition because there is nothing in the market place to compare the new idea against.

"The work we had to do was literally analyze how people use their cars and what their needs were," Sperlich said. "For the people on the project, it took a certain amount of vision because there wasn't anything out there to look at."

Once Chrysler created the niche, others tried to follow. Both Ford Motor Co. and General Motors Corp. entered vehicles into the market that were slightly larger with rear-wheel-drive, but they have yet to match the success of Chrysler's minivan.

For Chrysler, creating niche-markets has become a matter of existence. With Ford and General Motors fighting it out in both the big and compact pickup markets, Chrysler developed the Dodge Dakota mid-size pickup. Taking that idea one step further, they unleashed the Dakota convertible to find an even deeper niche.

Another niche exposed in the last few years is the sport utility market. Suzuki started the ball rolling in 1986 with its Samurai mini sport-utility vehicle. The low-end inexpensive vehicles met a very accepting young market and sales rocketed.

However, concerns about the small vehicles safety hurt sales of the Samurai in the last few years. However, Suzuki quickly rebounded with the successful Sidekick introduced last year, along with the GM version of the same vehicle, the Geo Tracker.

On the other end of that spectrum, traditional marketing logic would not recommend the production of a luxury, four-wheel drive vehicle that costs more than $40,000. Yet, the British-based Range Rover Company is doing just fine, appealing to the other end of the aforementioned market-segment.

The high-luxury sport utility vehicle found a very comfortable home in the upscale market, said Range Rover spokeswoman Monica Quagliotti.

"Range Rover has 18 narrowly defined markets around the world," Quagliotti said. "By knowing the makeup of our consumer public, the Range Rover continues to be successful."

"The typical Range Rover owner makes $200,000 annually, owns two or three homes, and purchases the upscale sport utility vehicle as a third mode of transportation," she added.

With the eve of a new decade here, manufacturers will hope for continued success with marketing niche vehicles.

Niche-market prospects on display at Detroit's 1990 auto show include all-terrain, sport utility vehicles, all-wheel-drive minivans, the rebirth of the small convertible, convertible pickup trucks, glass-roofed cars and aftermarket high performance vehicles from coach-builders like ASC and C&C Inc. This year's show may tell where the next niche-market will develop.

"The show's concept vehicles will give the manufacturers a good reading on what the public will want in the near future," Andrea explained. "Last year, the Pontiac Stinger and Ford Splash concept vehicles were a huge success with showgoers. How can a manufacturer ignore that feedback? Based on that success, it's very possible either one of those vehicles could find their way to market. Last year just a concept - this year a strong candidate for production."

According to Fritz Mayhew, director of Ford North American Vehicle Design, niche-markets will continue to be a strong force in determining future products. It's up to the manufacturers to determine what those products will be.

"Consumers see themselves as individualists, not followers waiting to swallow up the latest trend," said Fritz Mayhew.

Car-buying is good mental health

"Our sense of self depends heavily on what we possess," according to a professor of business administration.

In an article in Psychology Today, Russell Belk observed that automobiles are among the most important material possessions of Americans — particularly important to the identities of men.

For example, vehicles with oversized wheels and an elaborate array of accessories tell a lot about his masculinity, according to psychologist Eugene Hadwiger of Woodcreek Counseling in Farmington Hills.

While on the surface most selections are made on the basis of facts and figures about the various makes and models, the psychologist said, often other influences come into play of which the purchaser may not even be aware.

People who need to express some showiness to assert their individualism choose the "high ticket" models; those who want to express impulsiveness select convertibles or models with an array of accessories and gadgets, and those who want to appear to be conservative tend to purchase four-door vehicles with minimum accessories, according to studies of car buyers.

During the 1960s — a time of environmental concern — most individuals opted for small cars as "anti-status" symbols. However, as the Yuppie generation emerged in the 1980s, the automobile once again took on a new importance and cars regained their former magic with the buying public. In recent years the small car began to grow bigger, longer, sleeker and more luxurious.

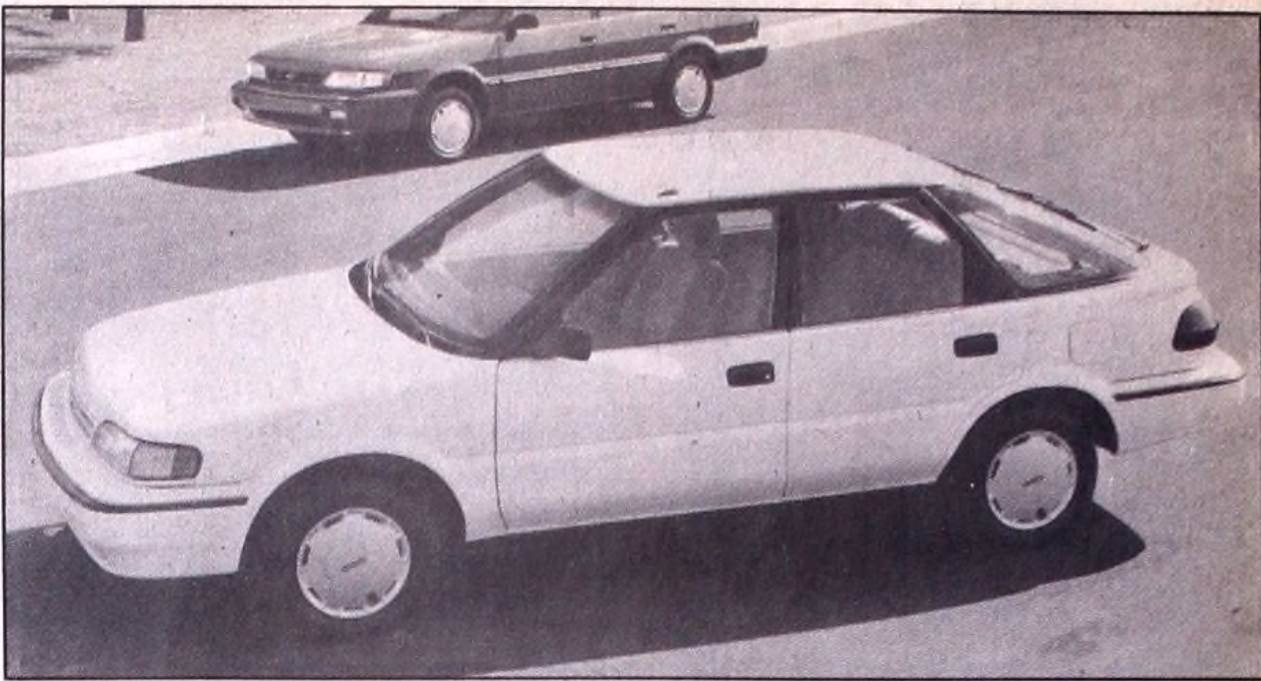

Americans, once again, have resumed their love affair with the automobile — particularly so in the Motor City area where automobiles, their parts and components are made.

Selection of a color of car may have its roots in how we interpret different shades and hues. Red, for example, is perceived as being a color of passion, excitement and activity, while purple is viewed as mystic and dignified.

One who chooses a white vehicle may do so because of its association with purity, cleanliness and brightness. Black, while perceived by some as a symbol of somberness, is prized by others as a symbol of elegance, formality and dignity.

Blue — associated with the sky and water — may be chosen by those who value its association with nature, and green — also a color of nature — is perceived by many as being a symbol of peace and quiet.

Shades of yellow and orange reflect cheerfulness and high spirits, but are probably too bright and garish for the tastes of most automobile owners.

Geo attracts new buyer

By DANIEL CALABRESE
ANP Staff Writer

When fuel-conscious people hear about GEOs, their ears perk up when they hear this figure — 50 miles per gallon.

Don Duff, sales and truck manager at Mark Chevrolet in Wayne, said he expects sports-minded people to enjoy the cars as much as those who think constantly about the bottom line at the gas pump.

GEO plans to introduce two new models at the North American International Auto Show in Detroit, which runs Jan. 6 to 14 at Cobo Center.

The new GEO Metro convertible and the new GEO Storm GSI will be on display during the show.

"(Sales) should be excellent," Duff said. "Real good."

Buyers for the two cars are expected to be between 21 and 25 years old.

Prices in the $10,000 to $11,000 range are expected to make the GEOs affordable for those younger buyers.

The Storm is slightly larger than the Metro and features a four-cylinder engine. The Metro has a three-cylinder engine.

According to Duff, Storms are already in the showroom and are more stylish than previous models.

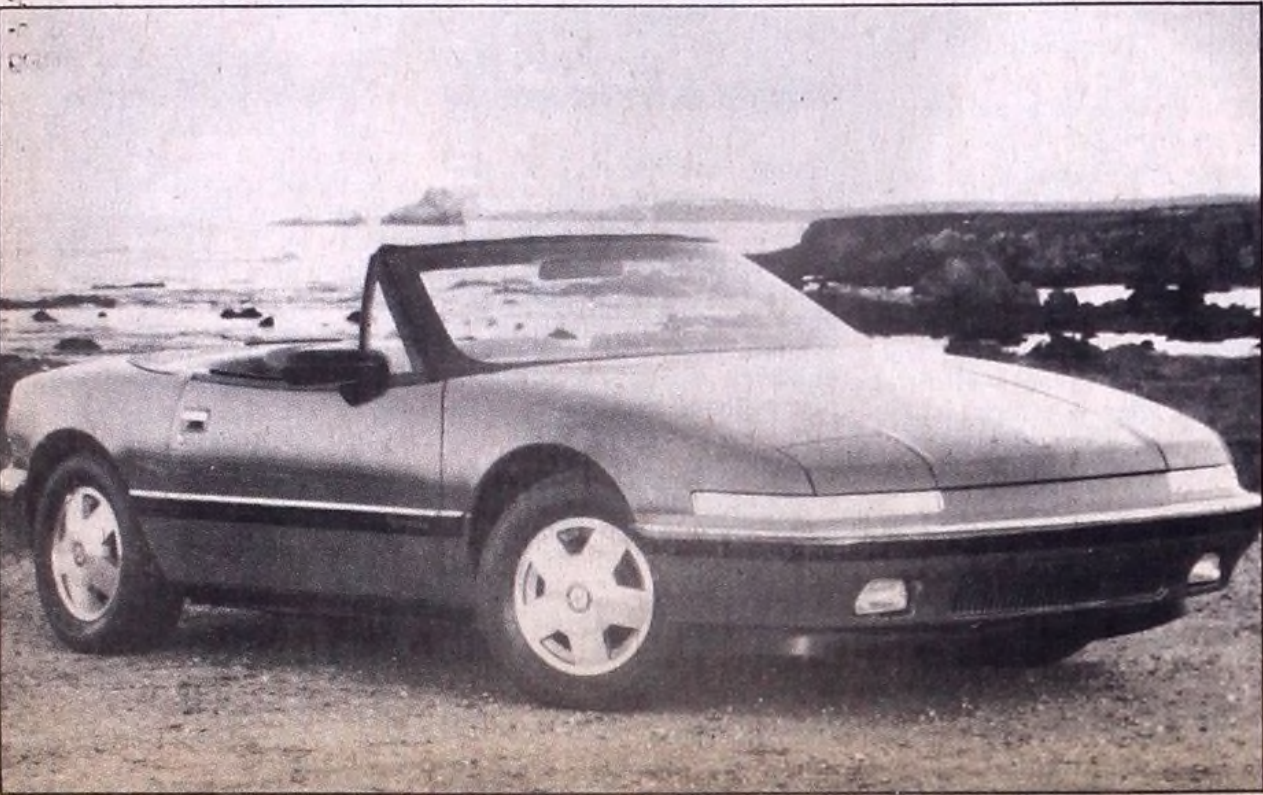

The Metro has not arrived, however, and Duff said he does not know when it will be available locally.

While auto sales are generally expected to be slow this year, Duff said that may not apply to the GEOs.

"The GEOs should have nationwide better sales because of the low prices," Duff said.

Workers

GM will employ more than 100 salaried and hourly workers at the show.

The ability to put such elaborate displays together could only come from a highly-skilled labor force, said Fred Tanari, general contractor for the show.

"We would never be able to even think of pulling something of this size off without the skilled union labor we have in this area," Tanari said.

More than 60 electricians, 165 riggers and 400 carpenters will construct 40 manufacturer displays. They will use materials brought in by more than 40 fully-loaded semi-trucks and assemble it on more than 500,000-square feet of carpeting, he said.

The floor will be assembled in a four-step process that begins with marking off the display areas. Union electricians will then move in and wire the area.

Chevrolet to debut
Beretta convertible

By DANIEL CALABRESE
ANP Staff Writer

The people at the Indianapolis 500 have enough faith in the 1990 Chevrolet Beretta to make it their Pace car for the 1990 race.

Chevy dealers are hoping local car buyers show the same faith.

The Beretta convertible is one of three new models Chevy will unveil this month at the North American International Auto Show in Detroit.

Other new models on display include the 1991 Caprice Classic and the all-wheel drive Astro.

Don Duff, sales and truck manager of Mark Chevrolet in Wayne, said the Beretta should have broad appeal.

"This particular car has won some races recently, so it should get some attention," Duff said.

The Beretta convertible,

"This particular car has won some races recently, so it should get some attention."

— Don Duff
sales manager

priced at approximately $19,000, includes a fuel-injected V-6 engine that produces nearly 130 horsepower.

According to Duff, the car is expected to be especially attractive to buyers between 25 and 35 years old.

"There will probably be a good percentage of women," Duff said.

The Beretta convertible should be available locally by spring, Duff said.

The 1991 Caprice Classic usually appeals to an older group, but Duff said the car may start attracting younger buyers.

While the average buyer age of the present Caprice Classic was 64, Duff said the new model is expected to appeal to the 45 to 60 age group.

The new Caprice Classic, priced between $17,000 and $20,000, features a full frame and a V-8 engine.

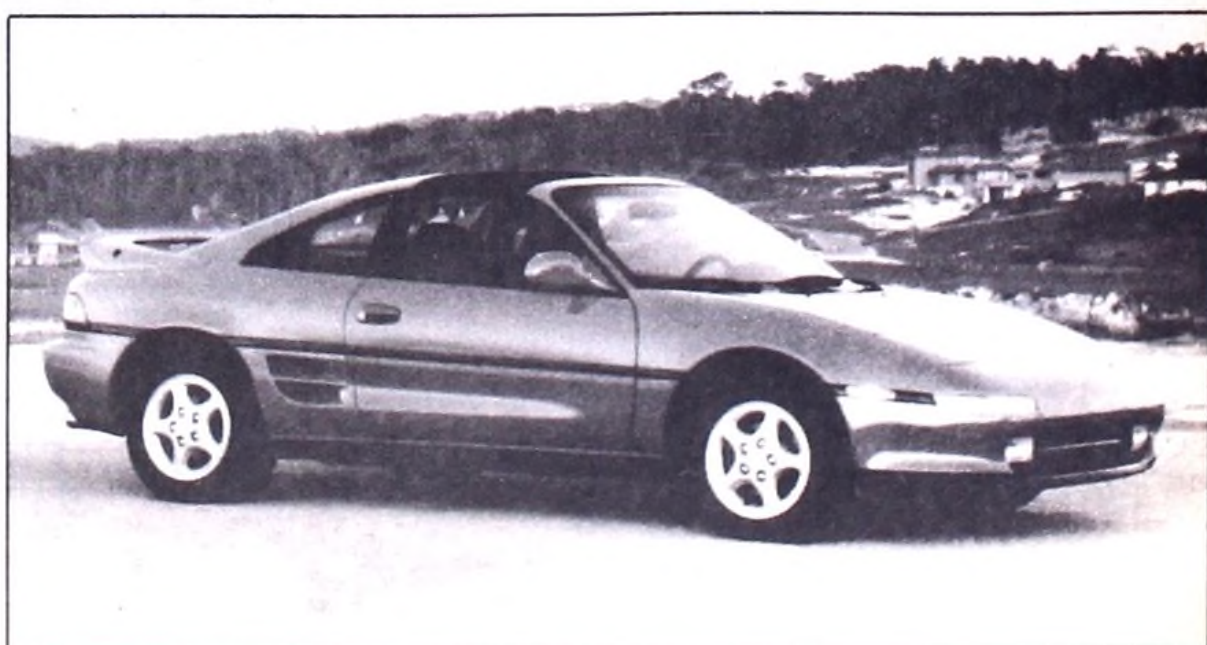

"It is one of the few cars that can pull a 5,000-pound trailer," Duff said.

The Caprice Classic should be in the showrooms in March.

Duff said he expects a smaller market for the new all-wheel drive Astro because of the $20,000 price tag.

With the exception of the all-wheel drive feature, Duff said the new Astro is not very different from older Astro models.

The Astros are expected to be available by February or March.

Debut

Making its North American debut at the auto show will be the new Toyota MR2 Turbo. The new version of the car is sportier and sleeker looking and boasts a more powerful engine. ANP photo special

Sleek Stealth is on the show menu for Dodge

By DANIEL CALABRESE
ANP Staff Writer

The 1991 Stealth and the Dakota Convertible Rage are the two new cars to be introduced by Dodge at the North American International Auto Show at Detroit.

Dodge expects the Stealth to be a contender in the sport specialty car market, and company officials say they have positioned it as the lead image car for Dodge.

The exterior design was inspired by the 1988 Dodge Intrepid concept car.

The car includes styling and functional cues expected to be suggestive of future Dodge models.

Engineered by Mitsubishi, the Stealth will be powered by an inter-cooled, twin-turbocharged, 24-valve, 3-liter, V-6 engine that will generate 280 horsepower.

Top speed of the car is 160 mph.

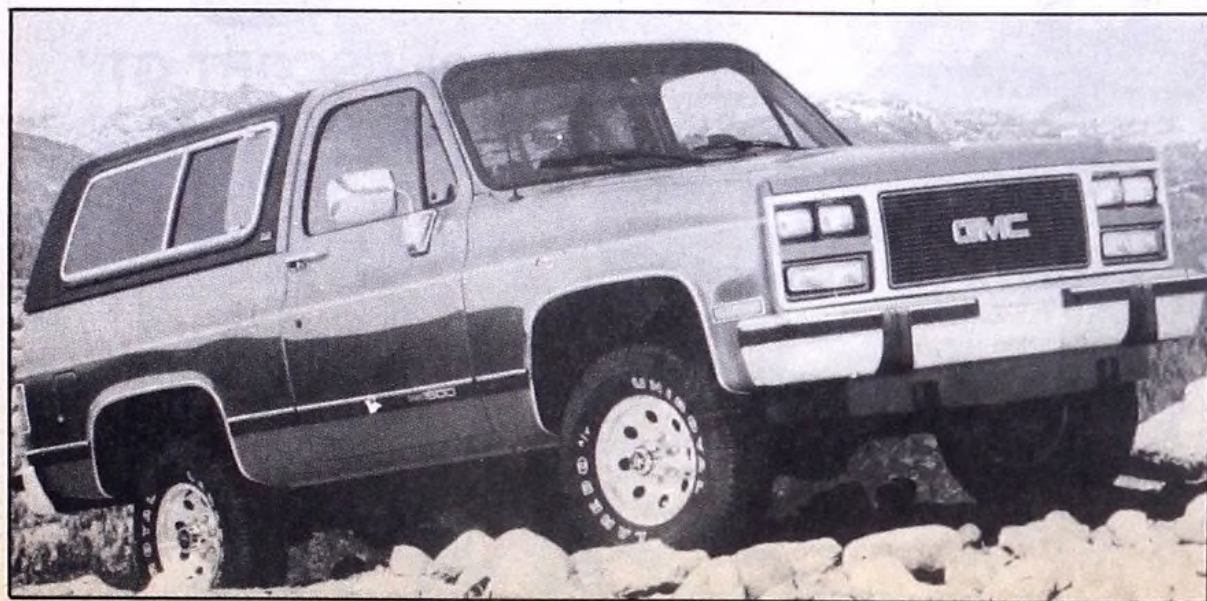

The Dakota convertible is expected to be popular, according to Rick Tripp, sales manager of Dick Scott Dodge in Plymouth. "I drove one for two weeks," Tripp said. "It's a looker."

The four-wheel drive car has a 3.9-liter V-6 engine.

Tripp said he expects the new Dakota to appeal to buyers between 18 and 40 years old. It is priced at $13,300.

"The convertibles are engineered from cars and concepts in Brighton," Tripp said. "Most of the new models will probably come out through the concept car."

The 1990 GMC full-size Jimmy is a popular model for families and outdoorsmen. ANP photo special

Concept Center offers glimpse of the future

By JOHN AGGE
ANP Staff Writer

The 1990 North American International Auto Show at Cobo Center offers attendees something never before witnessed at any other auto show in the country.

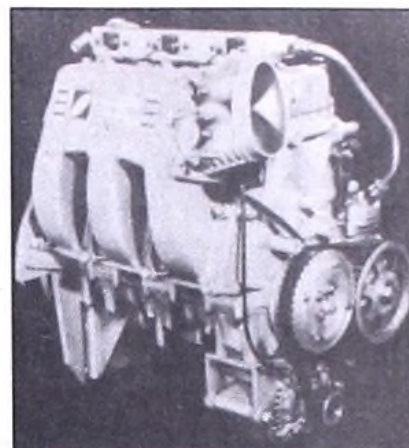

The Concept Center, a 50,000-square-foot testimonial to automotive design and technology, will debut at the auto show, which opens Jan. 6 and runs through Jan. 14. Some of the finest automobile manufacturers, design schools and engineering firms in the world will be represented, show planners said.

"This is a state-of-the-art celebration of automotive technology," said show co-chairman David Fischer. "A display of this innovative depth has never been exhibited here in North America." General Motors will actually assemble a sports car on the premises, using skilled workers and new robotics technology. The show planners believe show attendees will leave with a better understanding of the car production process with this firsthand glimpse of how a car will be built in the future.

The auto show also scored a major coup in luring Pininfarina, the world renowned Italian design firm which created the Ferrari, to the 1990 show. Pininfarina will display its concept vehicle Mythos for the first time on this continent.

"Pininfarina is the Christian Dior of automotive design," Carl Olsen said. Olsen is the transportation design chairman at the Center for Creative Studies in Detroit.

"It has the longest tradition, the finest quality of work and boasts Europe's finest automotive nameplates," Olsen said.

Environmentally safe and half the size of current engines, the orbital engine (above) will be on display in the Concept Center. ANP photo special ASC Inc., a downriver-based specialty firm, will introduce Vision II, a concept vehicle sure to impress the busy businessperson. The car features a complete on-board office system—a fax machine, computers, a navigation system, even stock market information at a fingertip. The car also has a rear-view mirror camera with monitors on the dashboard.

C & C Inc. of Brighton, formerly Cars & Concepts, will also be displaying its innovations in the specialty design field, but company officials are guarding the design secrets until the show opening.

Soft and sleek seem to be the trend in auto design, Olsen said. The rounded look on car exteriors, which originated in Europe, will continue to dominate the auto industry.

"Both Ford and GM will continue to explore the soft shapes exhibited by the world's design experts," Olsen said. "The Ford Taurus and Chevrolet Lumina series exhibit this philosophy of design."

Locally, the Concept Center is

It gives carmakers the opportunity to ask consumers 'are we going in the right direction? Is this what you want?'

receiving mixed reviews from auto dealers.

Brian Leggett, Buick sales manager at John Rogin Buick-Isuzu in Wayne, said he believes the Concept Center offers a rare chance at communication between the auto manufacturers and the consumers.

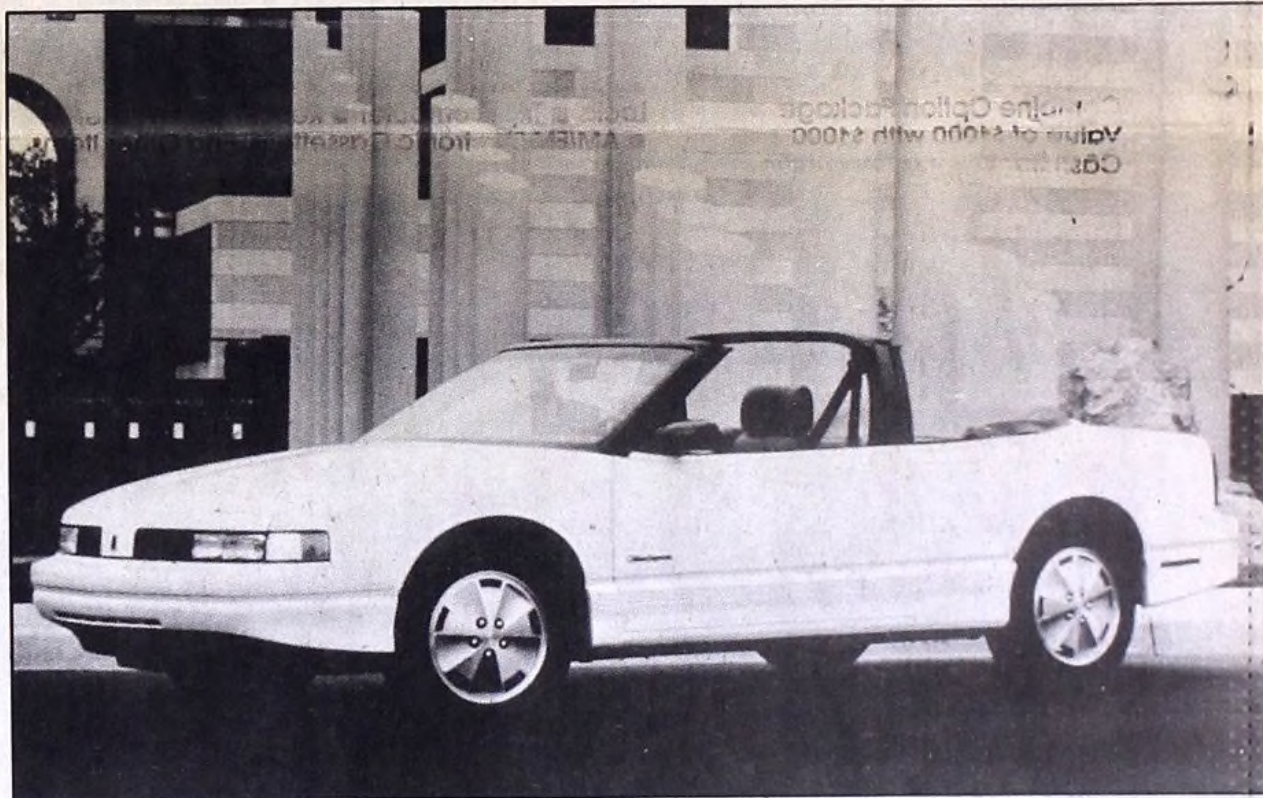

"It gives carmakers the opportunity to ask consumers 'are we going in the right direction? Is this what you want?'" Leggett said.

Leggett said he also believes the auto show in general generates excitement about the auto industry.

In Dearborn, Charnock Oldsmobile sales manager Sid Charnock believes the Concept Center could be a double-edged sword. While he agrees the visionary vehicles bring excitement to the consumers, Charnock also said the futuristic cars could bring about an "I'll wait until that car comes out before I buy" customer attitude.

Rick Williams, a salesman at Stu Evans Lincoln Mercury in Garden City, said the Concept Center may be much ado about nothing.

"They should concern themselves with the cars they have available right now," Williams said. "But I guess it (The Concept Center) will bring people down to the show."

Olds on parade
